U.S. Forces Join Viets in New Thrust

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—More than 1,000 American troops joined Vietnamese and Australian forces today for their second combined operation against the Viet Cong. Like the first such operation, there was no significant contact with the enemy, a U.S. spokesman reported.

Fighting was bloodier elsewhere. A U.S. spokesman said two Americans and 26 Vietnamese mountain troops were missing and four Vietnamese were killed in mountainous Pleiku Province, 215 miles northeast of Saigon.

About 2,500 troops were involved in the combined operation, including two battalions of U.S. paratroopers from the 173rd Airborne Brigade, one battalion of the Royal Australian Regiment, and two Vietnamese army battalions.

The operation was preceded by artillery and air bombardment of a stretch of jungle about 30 miles northeast of Saigon. Then about 100 helicopters began shuttling the troops in.

They were landed in "D one," in the same general vicinity as the last joint operation. Helicopters reported ground fire on the way, but a U.S. spokesman reported no casualties, damage or enemy contact throughout the day.

B-52 bombers of the Strategic Air Command dropped 500 tons of bombs into the Viet Cong-controlled "D one" Monday. The planes flew from Guam, 2,200 miles away.

American spokesman said the Viet Cong in Pleiku attacked a patrol of Vietnamese mountain troops accompanied by two American advisers about a mile from the Duc Co special forces camp Monday night.

Military sources reported that one American was killed, three were wounded and two were missing after the bloody fighting Monday around the jungle outpost of Ba Gia, 330 miles northeast of Saigon. The sources said South Vietnamese losses were 29 dead, 39 wounded and 107 missing.

Ba Gia, 10 miles from the Quang Ngai airstrip, was reported quiet today after a mortar barrage before dawn. But strong Viet Cong forces were reported holding their positions in the area.

The Army considers a machine lost only when it cannot be repaired and thus is damaged beyond any use. Its public figures do not reflect the number of helicopters which are hit by ground fire, put out of action temporarily and either repaired on the spot and flown out or hauled back to a base for major repairs.

Fear of Klan Curtails Probe

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Fear of — and sympathy for — the Ku Klux Klan is hampering his investigation of the hooded order, says Alabama Atty. Gen. Richmond Flowers. However, he claims he is making progress.

In an interview Monday Flowers said, "This bunch has a lot of people scared."

"In Alabama, my main problem is that the Klan has a lot of sympathizers. We have to educate the people to just what it is of a lousy, tough bunch the Klan is."

office said at least 219 arrests were made at Geneva-on-the-Lake. Twenty-six charged with disorderly conduct or resisting arrest paid $56.50 fines Monday and 29 others were turned over to the Ashtabula County Common Pleas Court. The approximately 100 arrested in the Indian Lake disturbances probably will be arraigned over several days, Logan County officials said.

The show of force by guardsmen cooled the situation down in both resorts quickly. The shortage of alcoholic beverages after the governor ordered the sale of beer and wine halted also put a damper on things. The trouble started at Russells Point, according to police, when youths set off skyrockets, cherry-bombs and other fireworks and heckled passing motorists with sparklers, late Saturday night.

Within minutes the mob was stopping cars and throwing firecrackers inside autos. Some of the crowd of more than 1,500 began walking on the roofs and hoods of the halted cars, while others opened doors and hoods.

Finally police moved in an attacked the crowd with tear gas and night sticks.

At Geneva-on-the-Lake, it was much the same story. The riot broke out there when Ashtabula County sheriff's deputies and local police tried to break up a fight between two youths, early Sunday.

Flying Medics Aid Victim of Fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For two months a young Mexican mother, burned over 70 per cent of her body, took aspirin, sat through 115-degree heat in her mud hut in a remote village, and waited for help to come.

It did, in the form of five doctors who spent the Independence Day weekend flying mercy missions into Mexican villages where there is no medical aid.

Now Ramona Franco de Portola, who spent those two months in an upright position, is lying down — here at White Memorial Hospital where doctors give her a 50-50 chance of surviving.

Dr. Robert Lawson, an Up-land, Calif., dentist who helped bring her north, described her suffering from third - degree burns as "a living hell."

"Since a stove set her clothes afire May 5, she lived in an upright position in unbelievable pain in the hut where temperatures rose to 115 degrees," said Lawson.

"It's a real miracle she's alive."

Dr. Lawson and four other doctors found Mrs. de Portola Saturday in the village of Tesapaco, Sonora.

The doctors are members of Liga International, a volunteer group of doctor-pilots.

Fearing her first airplane ride and reluctant to leave her 2-year-old child, Mrs. de Portola postponed her departure a day until her husband, Humberto, 25, convinced her it was for the best, Lawson said.

The woman was burned on the Mexican Cinco de Mayo holiday when she tried to light her primitive stove for her family's holiday meal.

Alone when her clothes caught fire, she rolled on the dirt floor to extinguish the flames. Her husband found her unconscious.

"She was propped on the bed, and she apparently moved very little until we found her," said Lawson. "Any movement of her body brought excruciating pain. Only a very brave woman with a strong will to live could have survived it."

TO DATE 406 pints have been collected. This compares to a quota of 520 pints for the period.

Officials noted that due to normal summer accidents the Columbus Blood Bank's supply is dangerously low. They reminded that all donors who have not given for eight weeks are eligible to contribute during Thursday's visit.

They also urge those who have never donated to volunteer this week. "It doesn't hurt," they added.

Robert Wavering, local program chairman, has requested the entire city and county to assist at Thursday's collection. He said this type of response will be essential if the community is to meet its blood needs during the year.

As blood program officials pointed out today, those willing to donate may be taking steps that would help themselves in the future, or members of their families.

The response to bloodmobile visits so far this year has not been good, according to program spokesmen. Collections here are 114 pints below quota.

Residents of Pickaway County can help this younger, and many others, by donating blood Thursday when the Bloodmobile comes to Circleville for a regular visit.

The unit will be in operation at the First Methodist Church from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The Army now has 12 helicopter companies in Viet Nam totaling about 300 machines. They are assigned chiefly to airlifting South Vietnamese army units into battle against the Communist Viet Cong.

The most recent arrivals were three companies equipped with the latest model UH1D, a machine which can carry 11 soldiers.

The three outfits were drawn from the 1st Infantry Division, Ft. Riley, Kan., the 101st Airborne Division, Ft. Campbell, Ky., and the 82nd Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg, N.C.

These three divisions are part of the Army's strategic reserve of eight regular divisions kept ready in the United States for swift movement to crisis points around the world.

Meanwhile, the Army released figures claiming that from Jan. 1, 1962 to last May 31 it lost only 45 helicopters in South Viet Nam as a result of Communist action.

During this period, it told the AP, helicopters flew 701,938 sorties. This works out to a loss rate of one chopper for every 15,598 sorties flown.

The Army considers a machine lost only when it cannot be repaired and thus is damaged beyond any use.

Its public figures do not reflect the number of helicopters which are hit by ground fire, put out of action temporarily and either repaired on the spot and flown out or hauled back to a base for major repairs.

GI Plans To Continue His Hunger Strike

FT. MONMOUTH, N.J. (AP) — Pvt. David R. Oval says he will continue his hunger strike against the Army "until I get my discharge as a conscientious objector or until I die."

The 23-year-old draftee from Los Angeles says he is drinking water but he has eaten nothing since June 21, when the Army said he "did not meet the criteria" for a conscientious objector's discharge.

Seven colleagues were injured — three critically — in the blast early Monday as liquid hydrogen was being pumped into a chamber of the center's big experimental hall.

Dr. Szymanski, who was in charge of the bubble chamber where the explosion took place, said he was at a control panel when he spotted hydrogen feed pressure higher than it should be.

He shut it off, but it still climbed. Then came the blast. Three coworkers were burned critically, and were on the danger list at Massachusetts General Hospital. They were:

John Schivell, 22, Harvard graduate student from Twinsburg, Ohio.

Arthur C. Reid, 19, a technical assistant at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Frank Feinberg, 20, of Providence, R.I., at MIT sophomore.

The center has been jointly operated by Harvard and MIT under grants from the Atomic Energy Commission since it was completed in 1962.

The center director, Dr. M. Stanley Livingston, professor of physics at MIT, said there was no possibility of radioactivity.

State Ranks Second with 36 Fatalities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio safety officials' predictions proved to be sadly inaccurate over the Fourth of July weekend, as 36 persons were reported killed on the state's highways.

Only California had a higher state total.

The Department of Highway Safety, going by records of previous three-day holiday weekends, predicted 24 would die in traffic.

The past weekend's toll will no doubt lead to grimmer predictions for future holiday weekends. The Independence Day Memorial Day weekends will again stretch over three days next year, and, of course, Labor Day weekend is always three days long.

Nine drownings were also reported in the state during the period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday. Two deaths in miscellaneous accidents brought the over-all accidental death toll to 47.

Travelers who went by airplane had a far brighter score. There were no accidents reported, pointing up the contention of the aviation-minded that highway travel is getting too dangerous.

The Highway Patrol said it arrested more than 4,000 persons over the July 4th holiday weekend, a record for a 78-hour period, in an attempt to cut the state's tragic traffic toll.

The patrol said it arrested 3,613 on state and federal roads, 477 violators on interstate highways and 233 on the Ohio Turnpike. Total number of arrests was 4,383.

The patrol said it added 136 men for the weekend, bringing the patrolling force to 512 men.

Belated reports of traffic deaths during the three-day Fourth of July weekend raised the national toll today to 542, a record for a three-day observance of the holiday.

Final figures were expected to raise the total killed during the 78-hour weekend even higher.

The previous record toll for a three-day Independence Day holiday was 504, set last year.

The count of traffic fatalities this year came close to the record for a four-day Independence observance, 557 in 1963.

House Studies Voting Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House faces a fierce interparty fight today as it takes up the voting rights bill which carries a top priority tag in President Johnson's legislative program.

Leaders hope for a final vote by Friday. They have said it appears certain some form of legislation will be passed to enforce the 15th Amendment's command that no person be denied the right to vote because of race or color.

A struggle looms over what approach should be taken — especially on the question of poll taxes.

Johnson urged prompt action when he sent his voting rights bill to Capitol Hill in mid-March at the height of racial demonstrations in Selma, Ala.

The Senate passed the bill May 26 by a 77-19 margin. It contained no ban on the use of poll taxes in state and local elections — the President had not asked for such a ban. But it included a provision calling for a court test on the constitutionality of such taxes. And the bill said Congress would declare that state poll taxes are used to discriminate against Negroes and the poor.

Poll taxes still are collected in Texas, Alabama, Mississippi and Virginia in state or local elections.

Key points in the Senate bill and the bill before the House are the suspension of literacy tests in elections and the use of federal registrars under certain conditions. These provisions automatically would trigger enforcement in seven Southern states — Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

House Republicans have drawn up a substitute measure. The big difference between it and the Democratic bill is that the GOP version has no automatic trigger which would apply it to specific Southern states.

If a president notified Congress of his disability, the vice president would take over until the president sent word that he was able to resume his powers.

In case a president was unable or unwilling to declare his disability, the vice president would become acting president if he and a majority of such other body as Congress might later provide for by law, sent a written declaration to Congress that the president was unable to discharge his duties.

A president could regain his powers by advising Congress that his inability no longer existed, unless this were challenged within four days by the vice president and a majority of the Cabinet or such other body as Congress provided.

Such a dispute then would be settled by Congress. It would be required to assemble within 48 hours if it were not in session.

If Congress determined within 21 days by a two-thirds vote in both the Senate and the House that the president was unable to discharge his duties, the vice president would continue to act as president. Otherwise the president would resume the powers and duties of his office.

McDonough and officers Leo Mincin, 37, and Joseph Laffey, 32, who were wounded, had been called to the Godfrey home, a two-story frame house in a low-rent section of the city's Hazelwood section.

Police said there apparently had been an argument over Scott's attentions to Godfrey's 16-year-old daughter, Ruth. The Godfreys also are Negroes.

Senate Opens Its Debate On Medicare Proposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate opens debate today on the historic bill which would establish broad health programs for 19 million Americans 65 or older and increase all present Social Security benefits.

The plan would cost an estimated 6.8 billion a year. It would be financed primarily by an increase in Social Security taxes, both to the employer and employee.

Sponsors said they would push for passage by the end of this week, and forecast as many as 80 favorable votes out of the 100-man Senate.

Last year, the Senate narrowly adopted, 49-44, an amendment to a House-passed bill adding health care for the aged to Social Security. The measure died in conference between the two branches.

This year, however, the House passed a health care-Social Security bill. The margin in the April 8 vote was a solid 313-115.

The Senate Finance Committee made numerous changes in the House bill but preserved all of its essential provisions. Its vote was 12-5 with Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., among the dissenters.

The provisions include a 7 per cent increase in Social Security retirement, survivor and disability benefits, retroactive to last Jan. 1, and these two new health programs:

—A basic plan financed under Social Security covering hospitalization, posthospital nursing home care, outpatient hospital diagnostic services, and posthospital home health visits.

—A voluntary, supplemental plan covering doctors' fees and some additional health services.

The bill also revises and beefs up the Kerr-Mills program of aid for old persons too poor to pay heavy medical expenses; increases federal grants for the needy, old, blind and disabled; authorizes new U.S. funds for child health programs.

It makes numerous changes in the Social Security law in addition to the increased benefits and the new hospitalization plan.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Horace Johnson, 35, was arrested Monday night after allegedly calling police and reporting he had beaten his common law wife to death with a chair last Friday.

The body Lela Bell was found in Johnson's home.

Police said Johnson hung up the telephone without telling where he was but he was found a short time later at an aunt's. Johnson was held for further investigation.

Hour of Reckoning Faces Youths Involved in Ohio Holiday Rioting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The tumult and the shouting have died in two Ohio resort areas swept by Independence Day rioting. But the days of reckoning have started for about 300 youngsters who participated.

The National Guard detachments have been pulled out of the Indian Lake resort village of Russells Point and the Lake Erie town of Geneva-on-the-Lake. Guardsmen were ordered into the areas after appeals for help to Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Business places in both localities were forced to close in the midst of what is one of the most lucrative holidays of the summer.

The Ashtabula County sheriff's office said at least 219 arrests were made at Geneva-on-the-Lake. Twenty-six charged with disorderly conduct or resisting arrest paid $56.50 fines Monday and 29 others were turned over to the Ashtabula County Common Pleas Court. The approximately 100 arrested in the Indian Lake disturbances probably will be arraigned over several days, Logan County officials said.

The show of force by guardsmen cooled the situation down in both resorts quickly. The shortage of alcoholic beverages after the governor ordered the sale of beer and wine halted also put a damper on things.

The trouble started at Russells Point, according to police, when youths set off skyrockets, cherry-bombs and other fireworks and heckled passing motorists with sparklers, late Saturday night.

Within minutes the mob was stopping cars and throwing firecrackers inside autos. Some of the crowd of more than 1,500 began walking on the roofs and hoods of the halted cars, while others opened doors and hoods.

At Geneva-on-the-Lake, it was much the same story. The riot broke out there when Ashtabula County sheriff's deputies and local police tried to break up a fight between two youths, early Sunday.

The crowd quickly grew to four or five thousand. Police said the youths threw "bottles, rocks and everything," and cheered every time an officer was hit.

Mayor Wilson W. Finley of Geneva-on-the-Lake said he will push for new ordinances with higher penalties for disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

U. S. Sen. Frank J. Lausche, in a prepared statement, cut loose on the rioters in these words:

"We cannot tolerate rioting becoming superior to the elected government officials. Firmness is indispensable to the preservation of government in matters of this type."

The plan would cost an estimated 6.8 billion a year. It would be financed primarily by an increase in Social Security taxes, both to the employer and employee.

Sponsors said they would push for passage by the end of this week, and forecast as many as 80 favorable votes out of the 100-man Senate.

Last year, the Senate narrowly adopted, 49-44, an amendment to a House-passed bill adding health care for the aged to Social Security. The measure died in conference between the two branches.

This year, however, the House passed a health care-Social Security bill. The margin in the April 8 vote was a solid 313-115.

The Senate Finance Committee made numerous changes in the House bill but preserved all of its essential provisions. Its vote was 12-5 with Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., among the dissenters.

The provisions include a 7 per cent increase in Social Security retirement, survivor and disability benefits, retroactive to last Jan. 1, and these two new health programs:

—A basic plan financed under Social Security covering hospitalization, posthospital nursing home care, outpatient hospital diagnostic services, and posthospital home health visits.

—A voluntary, supplemental plan covering doctors' fees and some additional health services.

The bill also revises and beefs up the Kerr-Mills program of aid for old persons too poor to pay heavy medical expenses; increases federal grants for the needy, old, blind and disabled; authorizes new U.S. funds for child health programs.

It makes numerous changes in the Social Security law in addition to the increased benefits and the new hospitalization plan.

Man Says He Clubbed His Mate with Chair

CINCINNATI (AP) — Horace Johnson, 35, was arrested Monday night after allegedly calling police and reporting he had beaten his common law wife to death with a chair last Friday.

The body Lela Bell was found in Johnson's home.

Police said Johnson hung up the telephone without telling where he was but he was found a short time later at an aunt's. Johnson was held for further investigation.

Great Lakes Area Handed Cooling Wave

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A mid - summer cold wave spread plummeted temperatures throughout the Great Lakes area early today, with some readings reported in the 30s and 40s.

The Weather Bureau said the cold weather, the result of a Canadian high pressure area, would spread throughout the Northeast later today.

Thundershowers continued to drench the north Atlantic coast. Rains Monday ended a long drought in the Northeast, but also triggered a series of small floods in the Utica, N.Y., area, where six inches of rain accompanied a severe storm.

Hundreds of homes and highways were inundated. Heavy rains also pounded the mid - Atlantic and Southeast states.

A line of thunderstorms stretched from southwest Minnesota to the Texas Panhandle and heavy rain, wind and some hail were reported in many locales. The crew of an American Airlines 707 jet said the plane's windshield was knocked out and its radar dome damaged in a heavy storm east of Texarkana late Monday night.

Hour of Reckoning Faces Youths Involved in Ohio Holiday Rioting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The tumult and the shouting have died in two Ohio resort areas swept by Independence Day rioting. But the days of reckoning have started for more than 300 youngsters who participated.

The National Guard detachments have been pulled out of the Indian Lake resort village of Russell's Point and the Lake Erie town of Geneva - on - the - Lake. Guardsmen were ordered into the areas after appeals for help to Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Business places in both localities were forced to close in the midst of what is one of the most lucrative holidays of the summer. The Ashtabula County sheriff's office said at least 219 arrests were made at Geneva-on-the-Lake. Twenty-six charged with disorderly conduct or resisting arrest paid $56.50 fines Monday and 29 others were turned over to the Ashtabula County Common Pleas Court. The approximately 100 arrested in the Indian Lake disturbances probably will be arraigned over several days, Logan County officials said.

The show of force by guardsmen cooled the situation down in both resorts quickly. The shortage of alcoholic beverages after the governor ordered the sale of beer and wine halted also put a damper on things.

The trouble started at Russell's Point, according to police, when youths set off skyrockets, cherry-bombs and other fireworks and heckled passing motorists with sparklers, late Saturday night.

Within minutes the mob was stopping cars and throwing firecrackers inside autos. Some of the crowd of more than 1,500 began walking on the roofs and hoods of the halted cars, while others opened doors and hoods.

Finally police moved in an attacked the crowd with tear gas and night sticks.

At Geneva-on-the-Lake, it was much the same story. The riot broke out there when Ashtabula County sheriff's deputies and local police tried to break up a fight between two youths, early Sunday.

The crowd quickly grew to four or five thousand. Police said the youths threw "bottles, rocks and everything," and cheered every time an officer was hit.

Mayor Wilson W. Finley of Geneva-on-the-Lake said he will push for new ordinances with higher penalties for disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

U. S. Sen. Frank J. Lausche, in a prepared statement, cut loose on the rioters in these words:

"We cannot tolerate rioting becoming superior to the existing elected government officials. Firmness is indispensable to the preservation of government in matters of this type."

Donors Needed for Thursday Visit by Bloodmobile Unit

A maximum amount of O-Positive type blood will be needed for a 5-year-old boy scheduled for open heart surgery this week.

Residents of Pickaway County can help this youngster, and many others, by donating blood Thursday when the Bloodmobile comes to Circleville for a regular visit. The unit will be in operation at the First Methodist Church from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m.

As blood program officials pointed out today, those willing to donate may be taking steps that would help themselves in the future, or members of their families.

The response to bloodmobile visits so far this year has not been good, according to program spokesmen. Collections

TO DATE 406 pints have been collected. This compares to a quota of 520 pints for the period.

Officials noted that due to normal summer accidents the Columbus Blood Bank's supply is dangerously low. They reminded that all donors who have not given for eight weeks are eligible to contribute during Thursday's visit.

They also urge those who have never donated to volunteer this week. "It doesn't hurt," they added.

Robert Wavering, local program chairman, has requested the entire city and county to assist at Thursday's collection. He said this type of response will be essential if the community is to meet its blood needs during the year.

Presidential Disability Measure Is Nearing Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders hope to complete congressional action today on a proposed constitutional amendment covering presidential disability and the filling of any vice-presidential vacancy.

Two hours were set aside for debate. The proposed constitutional change, a compromise of differing versions previously approved by each branch, whisked through the House last Thursday.

The Senate had been expected to act quickly too, but a snag developed when Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., and others contended language empowering a vice president to contest a president's ability to carry on was ambiguous.

However, Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said Friday he saw no reason why the amendment should not be approved as it stands. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., floor manager of the measure, predicted its approval.

After Congress acts, a constitutional amendment must be ratified by three-fourths of the state legislatures before becoming effective. The President's signature is not required.

On section of the proposed amendment provides that if the office of vice president becomes vacant, the president shall nominate a successor who would take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both houses of Congress.

Other sections designed to plug a worrisome gap in the Constitution provide that when a president is incapacitated or otherwise unable to discharge the powers of his office, the vice president shall become acting president.

If a president notified Congress of his disability, the vice president would take over until the president sent word that he was able to resume his powers.

In case a president was unable or unwilling to declare his disability, the vice president would become acting president if he and a majority of the Cabinet, or a majority of such other body as Congress might later provide for by law, sent a written declaration to Congress that the president was unable to discharge his duties.

A president could regain his powers by advising Congress that his inability no longer existed, unless this were challenged within four days by the vice president and a majority of the Cabinet or such other body as Congress provided.

Such a dispute then would be settled by Congress. It would be required to assemble within 48 hours if it were not in session.

If Congress determined within 21 days by a two-thirds vote in both the Senate and the House that the president was unable to discharge his duties, the vice president would continue to act as president. Otherwise the president would resume the powers and duties of his office.

House Studies Voting Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House faces a fierce interparty fight today as it takes up the voting rights bill which carries a top priority tag in President Johnson's legislative program.

Leaders hope for a final vote by Friday. They have said it appears certain some form of legislation will be passed to enforce the 15th Amendment's command that no person be denied the right to vote because of race or color.

A struggle looms over what approach should be taken — especially on the question of poll taxes.

Johnson urged prompt action when he sent his voting rights bill to Capitol Hill in mid-March at the height of racial demonstrations in Selma, Ala.

The Senate passed the bill May 26 by a 77-19 margin. It contained no ban on the use of poll taxes in state and local elections—the President had not asked for such a ban. But it included a provision calling for a court test on the constitutionality of such taxes. And the bill said Congress would declare that state poll taxes are used to discriminate against Negroes and the poor.

Poll taxes still are collected in Texas, Alabama, Mississippi and Virginia in state or local elections.

Key points in the Senate bill and the bill before the House are the suspension of literacy tests in elections and the use of federal registrars under certain conditions. These provisions automatically would trigger enforcement in seven Southern states—Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

House Republicans have drawn up a substitute measure. The big difference between it and the Democratic bill is that the GOP version has no automatic trigger which would apply it to specific Southern states.

Man Kills 2, Hurts Pair, Is Then Slain

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A young man armed with a repeating rifle killed a policeman and the father of his girl friend today and wounded two other officers. He was shot to death at dawn after a massive manhunt.

The rifleman was identified as Leroy Francis Scott, about 24, a Negro hot-rod enthusiast with blondish hair and a record of minor arrests.

Two patrolmen surprised him in a wooded area where he had hidden for five hours, nursing an apparently serious gunshot wound in an earlier exchange with police.

They shot him as he raised his rifle. He died en route to a hospital.

Killed in the earlier exchange of gunfire with Scott were patrolman Coleman McDonough, a former pro football player, and Aaron Godfrey.

McDonough and officers Leo Minic, 37, and Joseph Laffey, 32, who were wounded, had been called to the Godfrey home, a two-story frame house in a low-rent section of the city's Hazelwood section.

Police said there apparently had been an argument over Scott's attentions to Godfrey's 16-year-old daughter, Ruth. The Godfreys also are Negroes.

one" according to local law enforcement officers.

No traffic fatalities were recorded in the county and injury accidents were held to a minimum. However, Sheriff Dwight Radcliff reported a "rash of grass fires" during the three-day weekend.

Another fire run, at about 3:45 p. m. on Saturday, resulted in the loss of a load of straw belonging to Frank Bowling. According to Sheriff Radcliff, the driver of the tractor pulling the load of straw "had flipped a cigarette" and sparks ignited the straw.

In the midst of a "rush hour" at the sheriff's office, the radio base station "went on the blink." A repairman was on the scene shortly and the intercom was back in working order, Radcliff said.

No arrests were made here involving illegal use of fireworks, officers noted, although one report was received that youths were throwing firecrackers from a moving car.

U.S. Favors Latin Police Force Idea

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials said today the United States favors in principle the establishment of an inter-American force which might be called upon to meet hemisphere emergencies quickly.

Although the United States has not yet presented a formal detailed proposal on the inter-American force, the officials said the U.S. position has been made clear by President Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States.

The issue is to be discussed at a hemisphere meeting in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Aug. 4. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and foreign ministers from 19 Latin-American countries are expected to attend.

An OAS military force was set up for the first time, on a temporary basis, to bring peace to the Dominican Republic.

The proposal for a permanent peace-keeping force grew out of that situation, and this country since has proposed channeling $25 million through the OAS to support it.

Rubirosa Dies In Crackup After Party

PARIS (AP)—Police speculated today that fatigue may have been a factor in the death of Porfirio Rubirosa, 56, the international playboy whose sports car smashed into a tree as he was heading home from an all-night party.

The ex-diplomat and former husband of heiresses Doris Duke and Barbara Hutton died in an ambulance after his Ferrari clipped a parked car and rebounded into a tree, police said. He was flung against the wheel and windshield.

The driver of the parked car and a passing cyclist gave first aid and called an ambulance.

The accident, in the Bois de Boulogne, was not far from the spot where Prince Aly Khan, a close friend of Rubirosa, died in an automobile collision in May, 1960.

Rubirosa had spent Sunday night celebrating the victory of his polo team over a team led by his friend, Elie de Rothschild.

Rubirosa's wife, French actress Odile Rodin, left the party at 5 a. m., saying she was tired. Rubirosa and several friends continued the celebration.

In the dawn hours Rubirosa drove off alone in his convertible.

Two Injured In Minor Mishap

Two persons escaped with minor injuries yesterday when the driver of an auto lost control on a curve about two miles south of Five Points.

Benjamin Schwalbaugh, 21, told Deputy Sheriff Warren Straley that an oncoming car failed to dim head lights and he lost control of his vehicle on a curve.

Schwalbaugh and a passenger, Evelyn Schwalbaugh, were referred to a doctor for treatment of abrasions of the back and cuts and abrasions of the legs. The Schwalbaugh vehicle was extensively damaged.

La Conquistadora Enshrined Again

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP)—Enshrinement of a small jeweled statue of the Virgin has marked the 273rd annual observance of a Spanish general's vow in 1693.

The statue, called La Conquistadora, originally was carried to Santa Fe in 1625 by a Spanish priest. It was taken away by Spanish forces who evacuated Santa Fe during an Indian rebellion from 1680-92.

Spanish Gen. Don Diego de Vargas vowed da novena, a nine-day Mass, if he could retake the city without bloodshed, which he did in 1693.

Last week La Conquistadora was enshrined in Rosario chapel northwest of Santa Fe for a week and then returned to its place in St. Francis Cathedral.

The proposal for a permanent peace-keeping force grew out of that situation, and this country since has proposed channeling $25 million through the OAS to support it.

Viet Missile Sites Readied

U.S. Keeps Watch On Red Buildup
WASHINGTON (AP)—A State Department spokesman said today work on two missile sites in North Viet Nam is virtually complete and two other missile sites have reached an advanced stage.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey said that there is no evidence that missiles have been installed in the two completed sites. But obviously, he added, this is a question of time.

All the work on missile installations is being done in the Hanoi and port of Haiphong areas, he said.

Soviet missiles suited to the sites have a range of about 40 miles and are effective at high altitudes.

Newsman asked McCloskey for comment on reports that Soviet ships with big cargo hatches arrived at Haiphong over the weekend and this may have indicated that larger types of Soviet equipment for North Viet Nam had arrived.

McCloskey said he had no confirming information but he could not discount that possibility of deliveries being made in the future.

The Soviet Union has announced that it is stepping up its assistance to North Viet Nam as a result of U.S. support for South Viet Nam.

The missile sites around Hanoi and Haiphong have been closely observed over the last eight weeks.

McCloskey said "the last information we had is that work on two missile sites has been essentially completed and work may be in an advanced state of readiness on other sites."

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market advance withered early this afternoon and the price pattern turned mixed.

The market opened with a moderate gain, bringing hopes of a resumption of last week's vigorous advance. But blue chip stocks came under pressure and much of the gain was erased.

Motors eased despite a report that new car sales in June may have been the biggest for the month in history. General Motors was off a fraction after having been up about half a point.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was up .4 at 321.5 with industrials up .7, rails unchanged and utilities up .4.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was off 0.16 at 875.00 after having been up more than 2 points shortly after the opening.

All the work on missile installations is being done in the Hanoi and port of Haiphong areas, he said.

Soviet missiles suited to the sites have a range of about 40 miles and are effective at high altitudes.

Newsman asked McCloskey for comment on reports that Soviet ships with big cargo hatches arrived at Haiphong over the weekend and this may have indicated that larger types of Soviet equipment for North Viet Nam had arrived.

McCloskey said he had no confirming information but he could not discount that possibility of deliveries being made in the future.

The Soviet Union has announced that it is stepping up its assistance to North Viet Nam as a result of U.S. support for South Viet Nam.

The missile sites around Hanoi and Haiphong have been closely observed over the last eight weeks.

McCloskey said "the last information we had is that work on two missile sites has been essentially completed and work may be in an advanced state of readiness on other sites."

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market advance withered early this afternoon and the price pattern turned mixed.

The market opened with a moderate gain, bringing hopes of a resumption of last week's vigorous advance. But blue chip stocks came under pressure and much of the gain was erased.

Motors eased despite a report that new car sales in June may have been the biggest for the month in history. General Motors was off a fraction after having been up about half a point.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was up .4 at 321.5 with industrials up .7, rails unchanged and utilities up .4.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was off 0.16 at 875.00 after having been up more than 2 points shortly after the opening.

Most Prefer Change in Speaker Rule
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Eighty-seven per cent of 10,000 Ohio State University students expressing views favor liberalization or abolishment of the university's controversial speakers rule, according to results of a student poll announced today.

The poll was conducted beginning May 21 by a group of about 30 OSU students headed by Michael Billette of Fairmont, a Dayton suburb.

The group distributed 18,000 post cards to students at Ohio State and its branch campuses.

The students called themselves "the Committee for Expression of Student Opinion" (CESO). Billette said. Their sole purpose for existing is, he said, "not to advocate, not to abolish, but to ask."

"The asking consisted of three statements on the cards, one of which a student checked to indicate his views on the rule which gives President Novice G. Fawcett authority to ban from the campus speakers who are considered 'subversive'."

The findings from 10,000 cards students returned:

1. Forty-six per cent "would like a significant liberalization of the speakers rule."
2. Thirteen per cent "would like the rule to remain as it is."
3. Forty-one per cent "would like a total abolishment of the speakers rule."

Columbus Girl Is Named Miss Fourth at Ashville

A Columbus girl was first place winner in the Miss Fourth of July Bathing Beauty Contest at Ashville.

Diana L. Cary received the title and crown as the result of judging following the 7 p. m. parade on Saturday. As the first place winner she also received a watch.

First runnerup was Theresa Lynn Chellis, also of Columbus, and second runnerup was Susan Hoffines, Ashville. Each of the three winners received a bouquet of flowers.

Judging the event were Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Irvine and Mr. and Mrs. Neal Johnson, all of Upper Arlington.

OTHER contestants were Sophia Hoover, Ashville; Jeanne Farley, Circleville; Karen Rife, Ashville; Jane Kutter, Circleville; Carol Davis, Patti Barr, Linda Hall, Elizabeth Dean, Bonnie Forquer, Betty Pritchard, Sherry Matz, all of Ashville; Nancy Walisa, and Karen Lane, both of Circleville; Carol Bowdle, New Holland; Sally Smith, Ashville; Toni Carroll, Reynoldsburg; Terry Long, Ashville; and Lori Blair and Linda Pendleton both of Columbus.

Winners of the decorated parade float contest were also announced today. They are as follows:

Senior division — first, the First English Lutheran Church of Ashville; second, the United Brethren Church of Ashville.

Junior division — first, Cub Scout Den No. 2 of Pack 159, Ashville; second, Ashville Stitches and Stir 4-H Club; and third, Troop No. 730 of Girl Scouts.

Industrial division — first, Ed Irwin Insurance Agency; second, Owen Citgo Service Station.

Several musical units participated in the parade at 11 a. m. yesterday along with floats from the Pumpkin Show and Pickaway County Fair.

Once Around Roundtown

No traffic fatalities were recorded in the county and injury accidents were held to a minimum.

However, Sheriff Dwight Radcliff reported a "rash of grass fires" during the three-day weekend.

Another fire run, at about 3:45 p. m. on Saturday, resulted in the loss of a load of straw belonging to Frank Bowling.

According to Sheriff Radcliff, the driver of the tractor pulling the load of straw "had flipped a cigarette" and sparks ignited the straw.

In the midst of a "rush hour" at the sheriff's office, the radio base station "went on the blink." A repairman was on the scene shortly and the intercom was back in working order, Radcliff said.

No arrests were made here involving illegal use of fire-works, officers noted, although one report was received that youths were throwing firecrackers from a moving car.

U.S. Favors Latin Police Force Idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials said today the United States favors in principle the establishment of an inter-American force which might be called upon to meet hemisphere emergencies quickly.

Although the United States has not yet presented a formal detailed proposal on the inter-American force, the officials said the U.S. position has been made clear by President Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States.

The issue is to be discussed at a hemisphere meeting in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Aug. 4. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and foreign ministers from 19 Latin-American countries are expected to attend.

An OAS military force was set up for the first time, on a temporary basis, to bring peace to the Dominican Republic.

The proposal for a permanent peace-keeping force grew out of that situation, and this country since has proposed channeling $25 million through the OAS to support it.

No traffic deaths were reported in three states — Rhode Island, Delaware and Alaska. The District of Columbia also reported no traffic fatalities.

Boating accidents across the nation took 35 lives and 119 persons drowned in accidents not involving boats during the three-day weekend.

Jeep Fire Doused

Viet Missile Sites Readied

U.S. Keeps Watch On Red Buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) — A State Department spokesman said today work on two missile sites in North Viet Nam is virtually complete and two other missile sites have reached an advanced stage.

All the work on missile installations is being done in the Hanoi and port of Haiphong areas, he said.

Soviet missiles suited to the sites have a range of about 40 miles and are effective at high altitudes.

Poverty Plan Structure Criticized

The administration's so-called war on poverty should rather be called a "war on the poverty-stricken," Republican Congressman William H. Harsha of Ohio's 6th District charged today.

"Rather than making war on poverty, the politicians are making money on poverty," he added. He called attention to the reports of the "degrading manipulation, by political opportunists, of public funds that were intended to relieve the suffering of the economically unfortunate. This political manipulation is a disgraceful fact and a shocking illustration of 'man's inhumanity to man,' the Congressman said.

The Ohio legislator continued that even the Democratic chairman of the committee that reviewed his legislation is quoted officially as saying that "giant fiestas of political patronage have been encouraged." Harsha commented, "These are indeed strong words from a Democrat about an administration-operated program."

The Ohio congressman said: "I called attention last year to the fact that the war on poverty was designed to create a vast centralized authority, and I pointed out that our greatest weapon against poverty is a free and unregulated society built on private enterprise. I said that this legislation was a denunciation of our present economic system. Those words are proving to be all too true."

The program, and the resultant dependency on the Federal Government, are growing, he said. The President now wants $1.5 billion for his "war on the poverty - stricken" as against the $900 million that was wasted on the first year of the program.

And the end of this growth is nowhere in sight, he said. "Can there be any doubt as to where this type of legislation is leading us? By these socialistic programs we are being lured into fundamental changes in our economy; we are placing under the control of the Government the allocation of a very substantial portion of our national income."

Harsha concluded: "This Act has had the effect of holding out additional hope to poverty-stricken people, but the promises of the benefits that they will reap from this legislation are as empty as last year's birds nest."

Lineman's Son Jolted By Electrical Charge

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Robert Lowe, 13, was reported in critical condition today at Children's Hospital after a brush with a 24,000-volt electric wire.

Two of the boy's friends told investigators they were playing in the Cuyahoga River Gorge near an Ohio Edison Co. power plant Monday. They dared Robert to climb one of the steel towers and he did, they told investigators.

The boy slipped on the way down and reached out and grabbed a wire. It shorted and he fell 40 feet. Robert's father is a lineman for the company.

Count Basie's Band Adds A Touch of Beatle Beat

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The band played with the same insinuating style, punctuated by harmonic chords on the piano. But something new had been added: a slightly rolling beat reminiscent of the Beatles.

The great Count Basie was leading his band through a recording session at MGM Studios. The number was titled "Skol, Sister," and its faintly rock 'n' roll style was in honor of Ann-Margret, who digs such jive. She is the star of "Made in Paris," in which the Basie band is appearing.

Jazz purists might be aghast at such adulteration of the Basie style, but the pianist-leader himself has no qualms about it. "If I can't bet 'em, I'll join 'em," he grinned.

That doesn't mean that the Basie band is going to add electric guitars. The count merely believes in keeping up with the times. Such an attitude has helped keep him in the forefront of the band business for 30 years.

Basie will be 61 in August, but he shows no signs of slowing his pace of travel, which amounts to 10 months on the road each year. Members of his present

Controversial Sunday Liquor Bill Is Eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's lawmakers return to work today to begin a week that will include debate on the controversial Sunday liquor bill.

The measure to permit Sunday sale of liquor after 1 p.m. under local option in counties of 200,000 or more population is due for final hearings tonight before the House Liquor Committee.

Sponsors, including Sen. David T. Matia, D - Cuyahoga, have voiced optimism over chances of the Senate-passed measure but polls of committee members indicate tonight's decision will be a close one.

Matia and other supporters maintain the law is needed to boost Ohio's potential as a convention state, particularly in its three largest cities.

House Speaker Roger W. Cloud, R-Logan, said he is hopeful an agreement will come this week — 25th of the legislative session — on a school foundation program. The House Education Committee and its subcommittee are studying various proposals to boost state support for the public schools.

That problem is one of the major obstacles to final adjournment of the general assembly.

Other actions being awaited include a house vote on a Senate-approved bill to ban discrimination in housing, and Senate consideration of pay raises for 39,000 state employees and reorganization of the State Welfare Department.

The House is expected to complete passage this week of a measure to regulate Ohio's oil and gas industry. It was approved by the lower chamber once before but now must go back for consideration of Senate amendments.

It would set up a Division of Oil and Gas in the Department of Natural Resources. The division would take over functions now carried out by the Division of Mines.

Both houses are expected to hold unusual Friday sessions this week to make up for their late return from the Fourth of July holiday weekend. The Senate and House normally begin their work week Monday nights.

What Does Santa Do in Summer?

SANTA CLAUS, Ind. (AP) — What does Santa Claus do in the summer?

Mainly, he talks to youngsters. He asks them if they have been saying their prayers and sharing the toys and happiness he brought them last year.

From Easter to Christmas Eve, this tiny southern Indiana hamlet is Santa Claus Land.

An estimated 500,000 persons this year will visit the town, which traces its history to a group of settlers in the mid-19th century and now enjoys one of the nation's most famous postmarks.

Those who come here, adults and children alike, will be greeted with a hearty "Ho, ho, ho" by Jim Yellig, who has played Santa Claus for nearly 46 years.

Yellig, 72, refuses to step out of character. "This is my life,"

Police Seeking Man After Second Escape

CINCINNATI (AP) — Police in two states were on the lookout today for Russell Edward Riley, 37, who escaped from custody Monday for the second time within 24 hours.

Sgt. Russell Jackson of the homicide squad said Riley, charged with cutting to kill in a June 8 fight, walked out of General Hospital. He had been taken there after he complained of pains at the jail, where he was delivered Sunday from Indiana. Riley escaped Saturday night from the county jail at Brookville, Ind., but was recaptured the following morning.

Lima Business Building Is Hit by Costly Fire

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — The sky over downtown Lima was lit up Monday night as the Fourth of July weekend came to a close. A building with five stores in it was on fire.

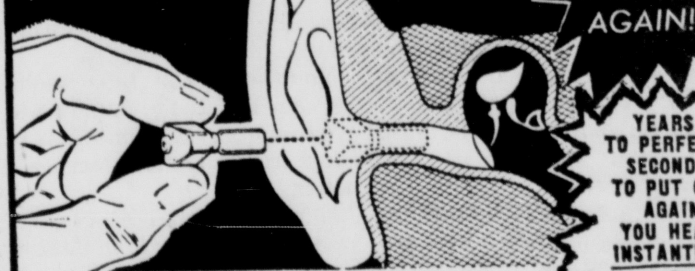

Assistant Fire Chief George Kelley estimated damage at $100,000 and said, "I could be low on that." He said two stores, a tailor shop and a sewing machine center were destroyed and that the other three sustained smoke and water damage.

No injuries were reported.

Health Care at the Crossroads

AN OPEN LETTER TO OUR PATIENTS

The curtain is about to be drawn on a great national debate . . . a debate over how health care for our elderly can best be provided.

This may be our last chance to appeal to you to pause and consider what the passage of a bill now before Congress would mean to you, your children, and their children. And it may be your last chance to do something about it.

It is a matter of great urgency. The U.S. Senate soon will vote on H.R. 6675 — the Medicare bill. Never has such a vital decision faced any Senator. So much is at stake.

If enacted into law, H.R. 6675 would introduce a new concept of medical care in this country. It would be the beginning of socialized medicine.

Is this a legacy we want to leave our children?

Government medicine is not new. It has been thoroughly tried and found wanting. Headlines of the past 12 months tell the story: Unrest and dissatisfaction in Belgium . . . in Italy . . . in Germany . . . in Sweden . . . in England. It is a history lesson we cannot afford to ignore. Mountains of red tape that take valuable time that doctors could spend with their patients . . . long waiting lines at doctors' offices . . . delays of weeks and months for needed surgery . . . vitally needed hospitals that don't get built.

All this can only mean lower quality medical care.

Do you want this in America?

If there ever was a matter that should be decided by the people, this is it. But time is running out.

Why, you may ask, are we urging action now when supporters of Medicare already have held victory celebrations?

Even at this late hour, we cannot — in good faith to our patients — stand silent as Congress prepares to start this nation on a dangerous adventure in government medicine, the end of which no one can see, and from which the patient is certain to be the ultimate sufferer.

And there is another reason. We want to make our position clear once more for the record.

We favor the use of public funds to provide a wide range of health care for all the elderly who need help, but we oppose taxing wage-earners and self-employed to provide care for everyone over 65, including the wealthy, the well-to-do and the self-supporting. We favor a program administered by the states — not by the Federal Government.

But as we said in the beginning, this could be our last chance to voice our views on this issue and to urge you to voice yours.

We have tried with our limited resources to make our position widely known. We have testified before Congress. We have purchased advertising to tell our story.

Now, it is up to you. Pause and consider, while there is still time, the consequences of imposing on this nation a system of government medicine. And let your Senators, your Congressmen and the President know your views on this vital issue.

This may be your last chance.

Poverty Plan Structure Criticized

The administration's so-called war on poverty should rather be called a "war on the poverty-stricken," Republican Congressman William H. Harsha of Ohio's 6th District charged today.

"Rather than making war on poverty, the politicians are making money on poverty," he added. He called attention to the reports of the "degrading manipulation, by political opportunists, of public funds that were intended to relieve the suffering of the economically unfortunate. This political manipulation is a disgraceful fact and a shocking illustration of 'man's inhumanity to man,' the Congressman said.

The Ohio legislator continued that even the Democratic chairman of the committee that reviewed his legislation is quoted officially as saying that "giant fiestas of political patronage have been encouraged." Harsha commented, "These are indeed strong words from a Democrat about an administration-operated program."

The Ohio congressman said: "I called attention last year to the fact that the war on poverty was designed to create a vast centralized authority, and I pointed out that our greatest weapon against poverty is a free and unregulated society built on private enterprise. I said that this legislation was a denunciation of our present economic system. Those words are proving to be all too true."

The program, and the resultant dependency on the Federal Government, are growing, he said. The President now wants $1.5 billion for his "war on the poverty - stricken" as against the $900 million that was wasted on the first year of the program.

And the end of this growth is nowhere in sight, he said. "Can there be any doubt as to where this type of legislation is leading us? By these socialistic programs we are being lured into fundamental changes in our economy; we are placing under the control of the Government the allocation of a very substantial portion of our national income."

Harsha concluded: "This Act has had the effect of holding out additional hope to poverty-stricken people, but the promises of the benefits that they will reap from this legislation are as empty as last year's birds nest."

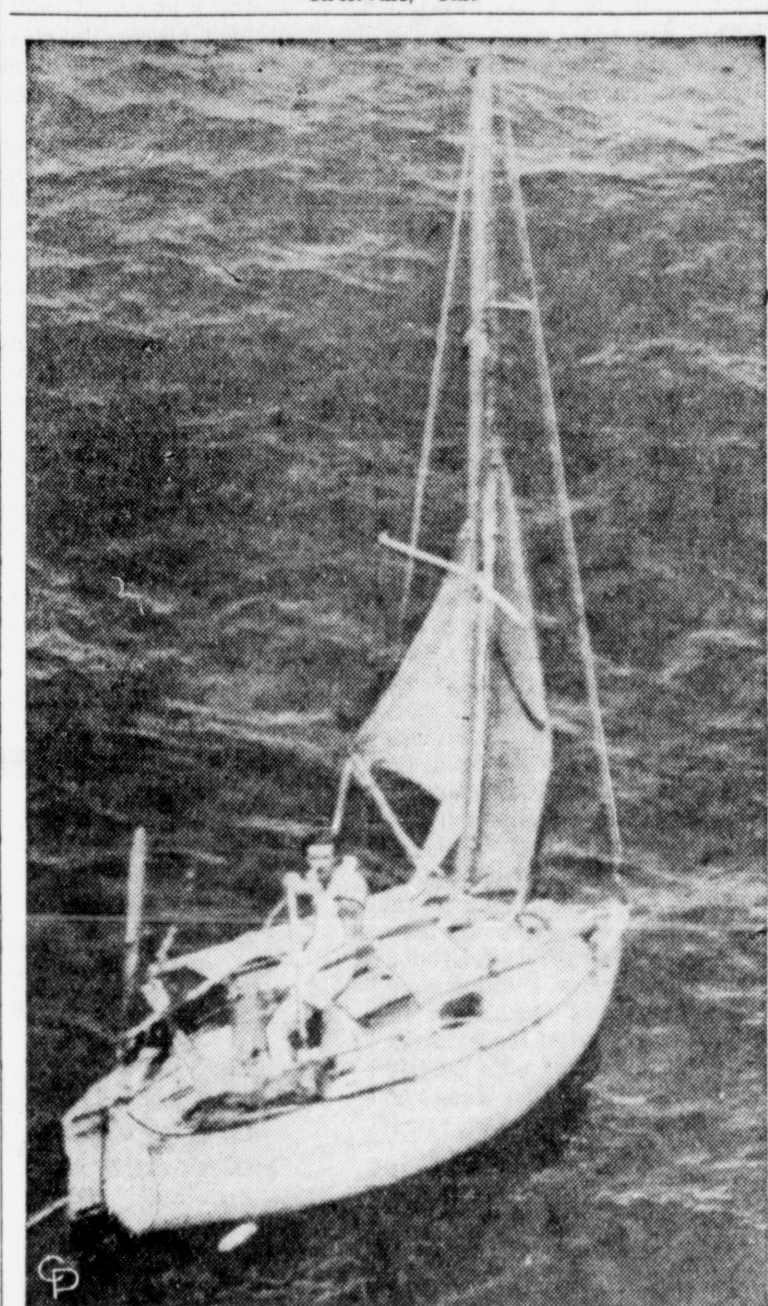

Lineman's Son Jolted By Electrical Charge

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Robert Lowe, 13, was reported in critical condition today at Children's Hospital after a brush with a 24,000-volt electric wire.

Two of the boy's friends told investigators they were playing in the Cuyahoga River Gorge near an Ohio Edison Co. power plant Monday. They dared Robert to climb one of the steel towers and he did, they told investigators.

The boy slipped on the way down and reached out and grabbed a wire. It shorted and he fell 40 feet. Robert's father is a lineman for the company.

Count Basie's Band Adds A Touch of Beatle Beat

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The band played with the same insinuating style, punctuated by harmonic chords on the piano. But something new had been added: a slightly rolling beat reminiscent of the Beatles.

The great Count Basie was leading his band through a recording session at MGM Studios. The number was titled "Skol, Sister," and its faintly rock 'n' roll style was in honor of Ann-Margret, who digs such jive. She is the star of "Made in Paris," in which the Basie band is appearing.

Jazz purists might be aghast at such adulteration of the Basie style, but the pianist-leader himself has no qualms about it.

"If I can't bet 'em, I'll join 'em," he grinned.

That doesn't mean that the Basie band is going to add electric guitars. The count merely believes in keeping up with the times. Such an attitude has helped keep him in the forefront of the band business for 30 years.

Basie will be 61 in August, but he shows no signs of slowing his pace of travel, which amounts to 10 months on the road each year. Members of his present

'Safer in Jet than in Auto'

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — It all happened in 16 minutes.

In that incredible fraction of an hour, a U.S. Air Force pilot napalm-bombed a target, his plane caught fire, he bailed out, landed in enemy territory and was plucked to safety by a passing Army helicopter.

"That's the only real emergency I've had in more than 4,000 hours in the air," said Capt. Edward F. Gallardo, 33, of Armstrong Creek, Wis.

"I feel much safer flying a jet plane than I do driving an automobile."

Ed is a dark-haired, F100 pilot who stands 5 feet 5, and weighs only 137 pounds. His wife, Pat, and their five children — none of whom is more than 5 years old — live in Hampton, Va.

The plucky fighter pilot's ordeal came on a recent Sunday when he had to skip morning religious services because of an early mission.

The mission was his 35th in some 40 days.

"I was first of our flight in on the target, some Viet Cong em-placements 42 miles south of here," said Gallardo. "I came in fast at 50 to 100 feet above the ground."

"I pushed what we call the pickle button to release the napalm cans. Immediately there was a loud explosion, and the cockpit filled with smoke. I didn't know whether I had been hit by ground fire, or something had gone wrong with the napalm."

"But I couldn't see out. My plane was on fire."

Instinctively, he put the plane into a climb.

"The smoke began to clear, but my plane was burning badly. I didn't know whether it would blow up or not. But you don't bail out over a target area if you can help it, and I headed toward the sea."

"I got up to 5,000 feet. At 6,000 feet the speed began to bleed down. The plane started to roll. The controls had burned away. I had become just a passenger, I had to go."

The captain jettisoned his canopy, pulled his triggers and was ejected.

"There was a big blast, and the next thing I knew I was floating down about 12 miles from the target area. It was a great view and I had plenty of time to think, but all I thought about was landing in a clear space."

Gallardo landed standing up between two houses in a native hamlet.

"I hit about 20 feet from a small boy," he said. "His eyes got big, he made a 180-degree turn and ran. I ran in the opposite direction toward a rice paddy, scattering dogs and chickens. I could be picked up there, but hide in the shrubbery around it if necessary."

Five planes circled protectively around his position and a pararescue team scrambled at the base here to get him. But an Army helicopter crew, apprised of his plight, picked him up.

"I wasn't on the ground more than five minutes," said the captain.

That afternoon at 5 o'clock the captain knelt at Mass in a chapel here.

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — It takes some pretty sophisticated machinery to package some of today's sophisticated products — such as convenience foods, push button toilet articles, or oral contraceptives.

With a few exceptions markers of this packaging machinery are specialized and therefore small as U.S. corporations go. They work closely with the sponsors of new products to devise the machinery needed to package them so they can be transported, displayed — and successfully moved into consumer hands.

You don't see the machines but do see their handwork in drug stores, supermarkets and other retail outlets across the nation.

Some members of the Packaging Machinery Manufacturers Institute will tell you that many of today's familiar items would never have reached the public without the discovery of the proper machinery to make the exact, and popular, package.

Even so, the institute president, Eugene E. Lakso, says that the entire industry now boasts only $400 million a year in annual sales. But, he quickly adds, it is growing fast.

Some of the machinery is highly complicated, sort of little brother to computers.

One big corporation with a division in the business is Eastman Kodak of Rochester, N.Y. It has developed a device to pluck a product from one machine while using another to take tiny pellets of raw material loaded in a hopper. It breaks these pellets down, spins them into a packaging material to fit exactly the contour of the product in a few seconds.

Eastman says the package is waterproof, airtight, and keeps the product from spoiling and contamination. The contour package also saves space, time and expense in handling.

Lakso's firm, the Lakso Company of Fitchburg, Mass., is one of several making machinery for sequential packaging of drug products. This process weighs materials for accurate dosage and packages the product individually.

In the field of oral contraceptives, the machines stamp numbers on the pills so that the user has a constant check against error. Now being tested is a machine that will take varying sizes of pills, insert and number them in proper sequence, wrap them in different colored materials as a further prevention of error.

Drug manufacturers also use machines, such as made by the New Jersey Machine Corporation of Hoboken, N.J., which electronically read the labels of raw materials and also scan labels on the finished products to correct errors.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

Carbon monoxide is an invisible killer. Carbon monoxide is a tasteless, odorless non-irritating gas that threatens the lives of those who do not adequately protect themselves against its treachery.

Automobile exhausts constantly pour large quantities of this stealthy killer into the air. In the open air this deadly gas is quickly diluted and does not then produce serious effects other than pollution of the air.

But when carbon monoxide gas is trapped within an automobile it becomes a dangerous killer.

Not a happy thought, especially at this time of the year when the mass summer migration takes families to distant places for happy holidays.

Carbon monoxide warnings must be heeded if its menace to life is to be avoided.

It is generally supposed that a car is safe and free from this poisonous gas if the windows are kept open. This may prove to be false security if the exhaust system is faulty.

Fumes can sometimes be pulled through the floor board and produce early symptoms of carbon monoxide intoxication.

What are some of the early symptoms that should arouse suspicion that carbon monoxide is circulating within the automobile?

When dizziness, repeated yawning, nausea, headache, ringing of the ears, a rapid pounding of the heart and drowsiness are noticed, without any other accountable medical reason, carbon monoxide may be the culprit.

How does one adequately safeguard against this hazard?

All automobiles must be tested regularly for an airtight exhaust system.

Air vents in automobiles can sometimes pick up the deadly exhaust from the car in front, especially while driving through tunnels.

Keep a safe distance and shut the air vents while going through long tunnels. Heater fans, too, can pick up another automobile's fumes and bring them into a car.

Although small amounts of carbon monoxide may not produce severe symptoms, it presents another hazard.

The sluggishness it produces reduces the driver's coordination, and sets the stage for many of the unexplained accidents, even by competent drivers.

Running an automobile with garage doors closed still takes its yearly toll in unnecessary deaths. Garage mechanics, wise to the ways of automobiles, still expose themselves to this risky gas.

The lethal hazards of carbon monoxide are avoidable. Rigid, regular inspection of the automobile pays its dividends in family safety.

Defective gas heaters and gas-operated refrigerators can also be a source of potential danger, in unventilated spaces, when they produce the poisonous fumes of carbon monoxide.

You're Telling Me!

By Willis A. Ritt Central Press Writer

Farm machinery three flatcars long, eight feet high and brightly painted red and yellow "disappeared" for three weeks on a 94-mile railroad trip from Northampton to Petersfield, England. This must be the greatest vanishing trick since the days of Harry Houdini.

Somehow sidetracked, the farm equipment traveled hundreds of miles before it was found. That, in itself, was another good trick.

This year's "Miss Argentina" is a school teacher and philosophy student. Who says brains and beauty don't mix?

The all but deserted old mining town of Belmont, Nev., which flourished before 1900, has been having a new boom—but the few folks there aren't enjoying it. Jet planes cracking the sonic barrier have smashed 15 windows there.

Honor, philosophizes Grandpappy Jenkins, is not lost forever—you can get some of it back, if you really try hard enough.

Self-Sufficiency

The domestic news out of Washington, D. C., these days stresses the give-away. It's money for anti-poverty, money for housing, money for everything else. Representative Barber Conable (R-N.Y.) refers to it as "undifferentiated goodness." But there is resistance to accepting "undifferentiated goodness," even though the stories about it tend to be blot-ted out because of the heavy concentration of our journalistic talent in the national capital.

There is the story of Doylestown, in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, for instance, which I would not have known about if I hadn't known some Bucks county folks. This chronicle properly begins two years ago when Mrs. Arthur Baum, the wife of a well-known magazine writer on business subjects, persuaded a town meeting of citizens to reverse its original inclination to accept an offer of $500,000 from Washington to pay for renovating the downtown areas in Doylestown. The town meeting decided on moral grounds, as was explained later in a letter to President Lyndon Johnson, "that a healthy community such as ours has no right to accept tax money from around the country until we had first tried all our own ideas and resources to solve our own downtown problems."

landlords and tenants in clearing away accumulated clutter, coordinating colors and adding plantings."

The co-chairmen decided to write to President Johnson because his daughter, Lynda Bird, had talked about her daddy's interest in promoting "the dignity of self-sufficiency." "We are concerned," said Democrat Shelley and Republican Kenny, "with the private renewal consultants who are going about this country showing every town how they can qualify for large amounts of Federal money. We hope it would be useful to your program of economy in government, combined with the dignity of individual improvement efforts, for you to have a staff member inspect our program with the view of placing more stringent regulations on those who would ask the Federal Government to solve all their local problems. We would, of course, be pleased to come to Washington with our pictures and artist's sketches of our work."

The letter found its way to the urban rehabilitation desk of Robert Weaver, Housing Administrator. He was polite about it, but evasive.

But maybe the Doylestown example will take off on its own. Several Main Line towns outside of Philadelphia have asked Democrat Shelley and Republican Kenny to show them their pictures and water colors of "before and after." The "consensus" outside of Washington, D. C., may yet do something to change the "consensus" inside the White House.

'Safer in Jet than in Auto'

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — It all happened in 16 minutes.

In that incredible fraction of an hour, a U.S. Air Force pilot napalm-bombed a target, his plane caught fire, he bailed out, landed in enemy territory and was plucked to safety by a passing Army helicopter.

"That's the only real emergency I've had in more than 4,000 hours in the air," said Capt. Edward F. Gallardo, 33, of Armstrong Creek, Wis.

"I feel much safer flying a jet plane than I do driving an automobile."

Ed is a dark-haired, F100 pilot who stands 5 feet 5, and weighs only 137 pounds. His wife, Pat, and their five children — none of whom is more than 5 years old — live in Hampton, Va.

The plucky fighter pilot's ordeal came on a recent Sunday when he had to skip morning religious services because of an early mission.

The mission was his 35th in some 40 days.

"I was first of our flight in on the target, some Viet Cong em-placements 42 miles south of here," said Gallardo. "I came in fast at 50 to 100 feet above the ground."

"I pushed what we call the pickle button to release the napalm cans. Immediately there was a loud explosion, and the cockpit filled with smoke. I didn't know whether I had been hit by ground fire, or something had gone wrong with the napalm."

"But I couldn't see out. My plane was on fire."

Instinctively, he put the plane into a climb.

"The smoke began to clear, but my plane was burning badly. I didn't know whether it would blow up or not. But you don't bail out over a target area if you can help it, and I headed toward the sea."

"I got up to 5,000 feet. At 6,000 feet the speed began to bleed down. The plane started to roll. The controls had burned away. I had become just a passenger. I had to go."

The captain jettisoned his canopy, pulled his triggers and was ejected.

"There was a big blast, and the next thing I knew I was floating down about 12 miles from the target area. It was a great view and I had plenty of time to think, but all I thought about was landing in a clear space."

Gallardo landed standing up between two houses in a native hamlet.

"I hit about 20 feet from a small boy," he said. "His eyes got big, he made a 180-degree turn and ran. I ran in the opposite direction toward a rice paddy, scattering dogs and chickens. I could be picked up there, but hide in the shrubbery around it if necessary."

Five planes circled protectively around his position and a pararescue team scrambled at the base here to get him. But an Army helicopter crew, apprised of his plight, picked him up.

"I wasn't on the ground more than five minutes," said the captain.

That afternoon at 5 o'clock the captain knelt at Mass in a chapel here.

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — It takes some pretty sophisticated machinery to package some of today's sophisticated products — such as convenience foods, push button toilet articles, or oral contraceptives.

With a few exceptions markers of this packaging machinery are specialized and therefore small as U.S. corporations go. They work closely with the sponsors of new products to devise the machinery needed to package them so they can be transported, displayed — and successfully moved into consumer hands.

You don't see the machines but do see their handiwork in drug stores, supermarkets, and other retail outlets across the nation.

Some members of the Packaging Machinery Manufacturers Institute will tell you that many of today's familiar items would never have reached the public without the discovery of the proper machinery to make the exact, and popular, package.

Even so, the institute president, Eugene E. Lakso, says that the entire industry now boasts only $400 million a year in annual sales. But, he quickly adds, it is growing fast.

Some of the machinery is highly complicated, sort of little brother to computers.

One big corporation with a division in the business is Eastman Kodak of Rochester, N.Y. It has developed a device to pluck a product from one machine while using another to take tiny pellets of raw material loaded in a hopper. It breaks these pellets down, spins them into a packaging material to fit exactly the contour of the product in a few seconds.

Eastman says the package is waterproof, airtight, and keeps the product from spoiling and contamination. The contour package also saves space, time and expense in handling.

Lakso's firm, the Lakso Company of Fitchburg, Mass., is one of several making machinery for sequential packaging of drug products. This process weighs materials for accurate dosage and packages the product individually.

In the field of oral contraceptives, the machines stamp numbers on the pills so that the user has a constant check against error. Now being tested is a machine that will take varying sizes of pills, insert and number them in proper sequence, wrap them in different colored materials as a further prevention of error.

Drug manufacturers also use machines, such as made by the New Jersey Machine Corporation of Hoboken, N.J., which electronically read the labels of raw materials and also scan labels on the finished products to correct errors.

EVER HAPPEN TO YOU?

By Blake

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Carbon monoxide is an invisible killer. Carbon monoxide is a tasteless, odorless non-irritating gas that threatens the lives of those who do not adequately protect themselves against its treachery.

Automobile exhausts constantly pour large quantities of this stealthy killer into the air. In the open air this deadly gas is quickly diluted and does not then produce serious effects other than pollution of the air.

But when carbon monoxide gas is trapped within an automobile it becomes a dangerous killer.

Not a happy thought, especially at this time of the year when the mass summer migration takes families to distant places for happy holidays.

Carbon monoxide warnings must be heeded if its menace to life is to be avoided.

It is generally supposed that a car is safe and free from this poisonous gas if the windows are kept open. This may prove to be false security if the exhaust system is faulty.

Fumes can sometimes be pulled through the floor board and produce early symptoms of carbon monoxide intoxication.

What are some of the early symptoms that should arouse suspicion that carbon monoxide is circulating within the automobile?

When dizziness, repeated yawning, nausea, headache, ringing of the ears, a rapid pounding of the heart and drowsiness are noticed, without any other accountable medical reason, carbon monoxide may be the culprit.

How does one adequately safeguard against this hazard?

All automobiles must be tested regularly for an airtight exhaust system.

Air vents in automobiles can sometimes pick up the deadly exhaust from the car in front, especially while driving through tunnels.

Keep a safe distance and shut the air vents while going through long tunnels. Heater fans, too, can pick up another automobile's fumes and bring them into a car.

Although small amounts of carbon monoxide may not produce severe symptoms, it presents another hazard.

The sluggishness it produces reduces the driver's co-ordination, and sets the stage for many of the unexplained accidents, even by competent drivers.

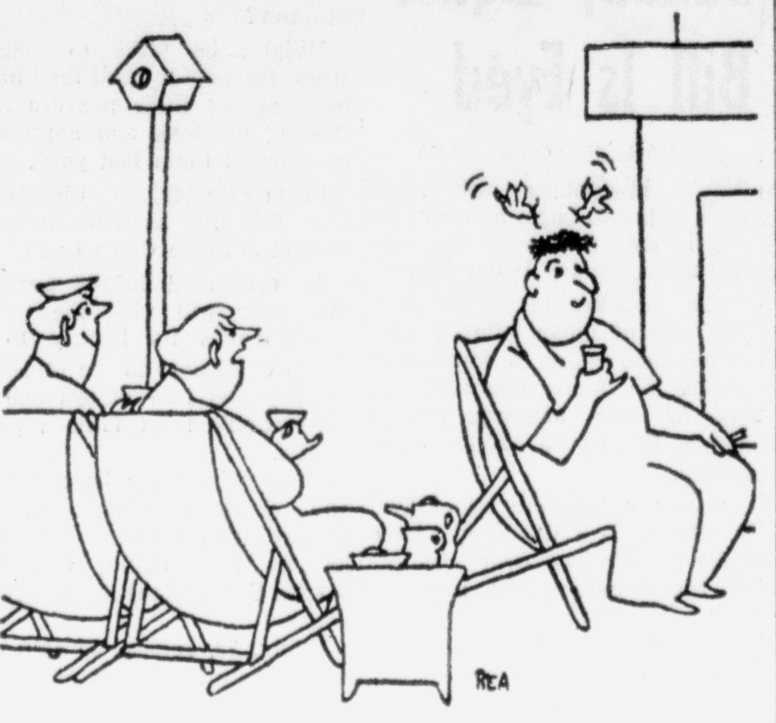

Running an automobile with garage doors closed still takes its yearly toll in unnecessary deaths. Garage mechanics, wise to the ways of automobiles, still expose themselves to this risky gas.

The lethal hazards of carbon monoxide are avoidable. Rigid, regular inspection of the automobile pays its dividends in family safety.

Defective gas heaters and gas-operated refrigerators can also be a source of potential danger, in unventilated spaces, when they produce the poisonous fumes of carbon monoxide.

Representative Barber Conable (R-N.Y.) prefers it as "undifferentiated goodness." But there is resistance to accepting "undifferentiated goodness," even thought the stories about it tend to be blotted out because of the heavy concentration of our journalistic talent in the national capital.

The town meeting decided on moral grounds, as was explained later in a letter to President Lyndon Johnson, "that a healthy community such as ours has no right to accept tax money from around the country until we had first tried all our own ideas and resources to solve our own downtown problems."

Out of the town meeting grew the project called Operation 64. It was headed by two co-chairmen, Frank L. Shelley Jr., a Democrat, and Joseph R. Kenny, a Republican, who delight in arguing with each other on public platforms. Operation 64 began by taking photographs of all the store fronts in Doylestown, which has its mixture of old pre-Revolutionary and Victorian buildings. Then it hired a good water colorist to provide a portfolio of sketches to show what the old buildings might become if the accretions of age and bad taste could only be shucked off.

The town's merchants became quite excited when they saw the difference between photographs and water colors. What has happened since is that Doylestown has been remodeled as fast as it could get local labor to do it. The painters and the carpenters of the area have been busy touching up old fronts and tearing off gewgaws that had disfigured sound architectural plans. You wouldn't know the old Fountain House now, for that old and dilapidated pre-Revolutionary inn has blossomed out as an up-to-date furniture store. The Doylestown bankers, getting into the spirit of the thing, offered the town's merchants rebuilding loans a low interest rates. But most of the merchants managed to accomplish the changes recommended by Operation 64 without borrowing any significant sums.

As Mr. Shelley (Democrat) and Mr. Kenny (Republican) wrote recently to Lyndon Johnson (who should have been impressed by the consensus), "our Operation 64 program . . . Banded together all our local talents and financial abilities in a spontaneous remodeling of store fronts and interiors up and down all our business streets. Our goal is now an unprecedented 100 per cent cooperation of all landlords and tenants in clearing away accumulated clutter, coordinating colors and adding plantings."

The co-chairmen decided to write to President Johnson because his daughter, Lynda Bird, had talked about her daddy's interest in promoting "the dignity of self-sufficiency." "We are concerned," said Democrat Shelley and Republican Kenny, "with the private renewal consultants who are going about this country showing every town how they can qualify for large amounts of Federal money. Youthful John Adams' Diary Bares Romance

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A youthful John Adams, pondering his future, exulting in his studies and pining for fair Orlinda, is revealed in a hitherto unknown diary.

Discovery of the manuscript, the earliest known diary of the man who became the second president of the United States, was announced here by L. H. Butterfield, editor-in-chief of the Adams papers, a 100-volume project to collect all documents of the famous family.

The diary was found at the Vermont Historical Society, Montpelier, Vt., among the papers of Royall Tyler, a Vermont judge and writer who once courted Adams' daughter Abigail.

Covering the years 1753 to 1758 when Adams was in his late teens and early twenties, the diary gives many of Adams' impressions of life as a student at Harvard and later as a teacher and law student in Worcester and as a young lawyer in Brintree.

Adams' thoughts were not always on his studies; he wrote in a draft of a letter to an unidentified friend:

"If I look upon a law book and labor to exert all my attention, my eyes tis true are on the book, but imagination is at a tea table with Orlinda, seeing that face, those eyes, that shape, that familiar friendly look and hearing sense divine come . . . from her tongue."

But the attractive Orlinda was not further identified. In any case, Adams at age 29 married Abigail Smith, the daughter of a minister in Weymouth, the next town to his native Braintree.

Another entry, believed to have been written in 1758, asks, "What are the motives that ought to urge me to hard study? The desire of fame, fortune and personal pleasure."

Wendell D. Garrett, an associate editor of the Adams papers at the Massachusetts Historical Society, found the diary while looking through the Tyler papers for possible love letters from Adams' daughter to Tyler.

Garrett spotted the document which bore no name but was in Adams' small, cramped handwriting.

Historians are deciphering and editing the 28-page document, preparing it for publication by the Belknap Press of Harvard University Press.

Youthful John Adams' Diary Bares Romance

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A youthful John Adams, pondering his future, exulting in his studies and pining for fair Orinda, is revealed in a hitherto unknown diary.

Discovery of the manuscript, the earliest known diary of the man who became the second president of the United States, was announced here by L. H. Butterfield, editor-in-chief of the Adams papers, a 100-volume project to collect all documents of the famous family.

The diary was found at the Vermont Historical Society, Montpelier, Vt., among the papers of Royall Tyler, a Vermont judge and writer who once courted Adams' daughter Abigail.

Covering the years 1753 to 1758 when Adams was in his late teens and early twenties, the diary gives many of Adams' impressions of life as a student at Harvard and later as a teacher and law student in Worcester and as a young lawyer in Brintree.

Adams' thoughts were not always on his studies; he wrote in a draft of a letter to an unidentified friend:

"If I look upon a law book and labor to exert all my attention, my eyes tis true are on the book, but imagination is at a tea table with Orinda, seeing that face, those eyes, that shape, that familiar friendly look and hearing sense divine come . . . from her tongue."

But the attractive Orinda was not further identified. In any case, Adams at age 29 married Abigail Smith, the daughter of a minister in Weymouth, the next town to his native Braintree.

Another entry, believed to have been written in 1758, asks, "What are the motives that ought to urge me to hard study?"

"The desire of fame, fortune and personal pleasure."

"A critical knowledge of the

Wendell D. Garrett, an associate editor of the Adams papers at the Massachusetts Historical Society, found the diary while looking through the Tyler papers for possible love letters from Adams' daughter to Tyler.

Garrett spotted the document which bore no name but was in Adams' small, cramped handwriting.

Historians are deciphering and editing the 28-page document, preparing it for publication by the Belknap Press of Harvard University Press.

Circleville Garden Club Members Meet

The July meeting of Circleville Garden Club was held at the Darrell Hatfield residence, 345 Sunset Drive. Members enjoyed a narrated tour of the garden which contains a large variety of plants with hemerocallis predominating.

Mrs. Leora Sayre, president, was in charge of the business session. Reports were given of several recent garden club sessions. Mrs. Sayre reviewed "Carefree Gardening" by Jean Hersey, the book she selected for the club's 20th annual book gift to the local library.

Plans were made for all members to cooperate with The Herb Garden Exhibit project at the County Fair. Mrs. Hatfield is general chairman. William Cook told of his cooperation with recent floral additions for the beautification project at the county fairgrounds.

Guiding policies and principles for total club endeavors were revised to fit current needs and association specifications. There was special recognition of the following five charter members whose official membership continues: Floyd Bartley, William Cook, Mrs. C. C. McClure, Mrs. George Ritt and Mrs. Donald H. Watt. There were 16 members when the club began in July, 1946.

Mrs. Earl Smith and Mrs. Leo Sines were appointed as an auditing committee for the 1964-65 Club year.

Mrs. Watt presented information concerning the 35th annual convention of The Ohio Association of Garden Clubs which is scheduled Aug. 18-19 at Delaware on the campus of Ohio Wesleyan University.

Handy Hatfield, a student at Ohio State University and a member of both the Ohio and American Hemerocallis Societies, gave an informative illustrated talk concerning the total culture of hemerocallis — commonly recognized as the day lily. He showed color pictures of several hemerocallis gardens visited in Ohio, Louisiana, and Texas.

Several techniques for selection and care were given of this floral plant which, as the speaker stated, grows easily in most any soil or climate. He listed several of the most popular of the 10,000 named varieties that have been produced from the original species.

Mrs. Hatfield showed color slides of Longwood Gardens at Kenneth Square, Pennsylvania. She elaborated on the many outstanding garden sections and conservatories of this Du Pont estate which the Hatfield family visited in June.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting, an evening picnic session, is scheduled August 12 in the home of Floyd Bartley, Route 4.

Liver should be cooked within 24 hours after purchase; if it is not prepared within that period, put it in the freezer.

Dear Abby: She's Being Framed!

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I lived for a year with his parents, and when we were packing to move I ran across a framed picture of one of my husband's old girl friends. I started to throw it away, but my mother-in-law asked if she could have it for the frame. Naturally, I gave it to her, thinking she wanted it only for the frame. Seven years and two small children later she still has that picture in the same frame, displayed on the mantel. She was never very close to the girl and my husband didn't go with this girl very long. (She has three other sons who went with girls longer than my husband went with this girl and she doesn't display THEIR girl friends' pictures.) Every time I see that picture I burn up. Why is she holding on to the girl's picture? She wouldn't like it if my mother kept one of my old boy friend's pictures on display. And neither would my husband.

STILL BURNING
DEAR STILL: Your mother-in-law is playing a game. Tell your husband you don't think it is funny; that if she continues to flaunt the old flame, you'll stay clear of her house. And if he wants a healthy marriage, he had better throw some water on the fire.

PIGTAIL TALE—A velvet pigtail cloche from the autumn collection of Christian Dior Chapeaux displayed in London is modeled by Mary Gray. The hat is called "Chinatown." (Cablephoto).

Explains Problem

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Mrs. Earle McNary will be more specific the next time she telephones an electrician.

Recently, her doorbell wouldn't work. She called a repair shop and asked if they could send a man to fix a little electrical trouble. He promised to stop by the next day.

A week passed and no serviceman. Mrs. McNary telephoned the shop again and was told:

"I came by the address you gave me the day after you called," the electrician said. "I must have rung the doorbell 10 minutes but nobody answered."

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem. My sweetheart and I plan to be married soon and we have been studying all the etiquette and customs of weddings, receptions, etc. Neither my bride or I like the idea of standing in the receiving line and having to let every man who walks through kiss her for luck. She is not being selfish or silly. She just doesn't want to be kissed by any man other than me on her wedding day. How can she get out of letting them kiss her without hurting their feelings? What if she says, "Hands off," and they try to kiss her anyway?

NO KISSES
DEAR NO: A woman (or even a man, for that matter) who doesn't want to be kissed on the lips need only turn her head, to indicate that a kiss on the cheek is expected. I doubt that it will be necessary for the bride to say, "Hands off," to anyone. If you seriously object to even a kiss on the cheek "for luck" — you two ought to go off by yourselves and get married.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the article about the man who considers it "effeminate" to kiss his little son. It sure burned me up. We are the fortunate parents of a whole household of boys, ranging in age from teenagers down to toddlers. My big, strong, strapping husband kisses and loves his boys all the time. And when they line up every night for the good night kiss ritual, the teenagers lead the pack. When they get too big to crawl up on Dad's lap for affection, they get hugs, pats on the back and their hair tussled. And my husband is the most masculine man I have ever seen.

So I agree with you, Abby. If a father shows outward signs of affection to his sons, it does not reflect on his masculinity. It only accentuates it.

MONDAY
The White House announced that Charles J. Hitch, assistant secretary of defense, is leaving his post Aug. 31, and will be succeeded by Robert N. Anthony, professor of business administration at Harvard University.

President Johnson announced he had selected veteran diplomat Livingston T. Merchant as the new U.S. executive director of the World Bank to succeed John C. Bullitt, who has become director of the New Jersey Office of Economic Opportunity.

A large force of Viet Cong guerrillas laid siege to a government outpost near the Quang Ngai airstrip 330 miles north-east of Saigon.

Porfirio Rubirosa, 56-year-old Dominican playboy-diplomat, was killed when his sports car clipped a parked car in the Boulogne woods on the west edge of Paris, then smashed into a tree.

Houari Boumedienne formally took over Algeria's government with the promise of a new constitution that would allow the "free expression of the people's will."

A joint announcement in Vatican City and Geneva said a working group "to intensify and extend official contacts between the Lutheran World Federation and the Roman Catholic Church" has been approved by both churches.

France withdrew its experts from two European Common Market working groups, following a French threat to oppose any new activities of the six-nation community until it settles its farm policy.

Settlement Possible In Cincy Driver Strike

CINCINNATI (AP)—Some 500 members of Teamsters Union Local 100 are voting today on contract proposals that could end a three-week-old strike which has halted major construction in the greater Cincinnati area.

George P. Starling, president of the local, said work will resume Wednesday if the contract terms are accepted. About 1,000 teamsters went on strike last month, but many have returned to work as the union came to terms with various trucking firms.

Following a French threat to oppose any new activities of the six-nation community until it settles its farm policy.

Policeman's Bribe Trial Opens Today

CLEVELAND (AP)—The trial of a Cleveland patrolman charged with soliciting and taking a $100 bribe opens today in Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court.

Raymond J. Uzell, 32, a member of the police force since 1958, pleaded innocent when arraigned on a charge of seeking the bribe to influence his judgment in a traffic accident April 16.

Uzell was arrested at Burke Lakefront Airport April 17 by police acting on a tip from information supplied by Mrs. Carol Witt, 32, of Wickliffe.

Police said they found $100 in marked bills under the seat of Uzell's patrol car. The money was given to Uzell by Mrs. Witt, a friend of one of the persons involved in the traffic accident, police said. Mrs. Witt set up a contact with Uzell in cooperation with police.

Mrs. Witt said she heard of the alleged bribe being set up after an accident involving an auto driven by Robert Chipps, 28, of Cleveland.

Uzell was suspended after the alleged bribery incident by Safety Director John N. McCormick.

Spotting Speeders Is Easy In State Patrol Airplane

By STEVE JONES

Spotting speeding motorists in one of the Ohio State Highway Patrol traffic control planes is like shooting fish in a barrel.

From the air, a speeder stands out like a sore thumb. A trip in the OSP traffic plane Saturday afternoon made this quite evident.

Piloting the plane was Sgt. Jim Haines. Patrolman R. E. Carson of the local post was his "spotter".

"Just look for the car that's passing everything," Sgt. Haines said. Sgt. Haines explained a sign is posted ahead of the check point, indicating the airplane speed check is under way.

"MANY cars see the sign and slow down," the sergeant explained. "This is good," he continued, since our primary purpose is to slow down speeders. And the air speed check is considered one of the most accurate of any means.

Saturday's check resulted in 19 motorists being cited for exceeding the 60 mile per hour speed limit on Route 23.

The method, in spite of its high degree of accuracy, is amazingly simple.

A one mile long check point is divided into one-quarter mile strips.

The control plane, with the pilot and one spotter patrol the air over the check point. They look for a motorist approaching who is passing most of the other cars on the highway. They trip a stop watch as he passes one of the white painted lines. The watch is stopped as the motorist passes

Luci Baines' Rebaptism Is Pondered

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times reported today that the rebaptism of Luci Baines Johnson, the President's young daughter, on her conversion to Roman Catholicism has roused puzzlement and some regret in Vatican circles.

The Times said in a dispatch from Rome that Vatican sources were assuming that the rite was a "conditional baptism." In cases, in which a priest may doubt the validity of an original baptism, he pronounces the "conditional" formula, which begins "If you have not been baptized, I baptize thee..."

Miss Johnson was baptized as an infant in the Episcopal Church.

To question the validity of baptism in any Christian church is contrary to the currently accepted practice of the Roman Catholic Church, statements of Pope Paul VI, the will of the Ecumenical Council and the rulings of the Holy Office, the Times said.

The Times reported from Washington that the Rev. James Montgomery said he followed the laws of the church in rebaptizing Miss Johnson. Father Montgomery told the Times Miss Johnson requested the ceremony because she wishes in conscience to be sure she was meeting the requirements of the Church.

the one-quarter mark, and the speed computed.

THE car, if speeding, is then "talked" to the patrolmen on the ground who have outside speakers on their car radios.

And here again, there is virtually no chance of the patrolman making a mistake.

The plane stays right with the car until it is stopped.

A good control program requires three cars on the ground. After several motorists have been stopped, one of the patrolmen takes them to the Circleville Municipal Court or the Police Station to post bond.

Members of the Highway Patrol are not allowed to accept bond or fine money. City policemen, however, are all deputy clerks of the local Municipal Court and when it is not in session they accept the bond money.

Those motorists who live in or near Circleville are given a date to appear in court and are not required to post bond.

BUT out of state drivers as well as those who live some distance away must post bond or sign a waiver. The waiver authorizes the court bailiff to enter a plea of guilty to the charge at the hearing. If the waiver is signed, the motorist pays his fine and continues on his way.

During a speed check, the busiest men are the patrolmen on the ground. They not only stop the motorist, but also fill out traffic citations and take violators in to post bond.

Flying as spotter is on a volunteer basis. Sgt. Haines said that at Circleville he never had trouble getting a spotter since all the men stationed here like to fly.

In fact, he pointed out that some of the men will volunteer to fly as spotter on their own time.

Another Move Is Started To End Ohio Death Penalty

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — About 8:30 p. m. July 30, William Jack Bradley will walk 25 feet to his death.

Unless plans are changed, Bradley's last walk will take him to the death chamber at Ohio Penitentiary. There he will be strapped to the electric chair.

Four men pushing identical buttons will send 2,000 volts of electricity through the chair in 34-100 of a second Bradley will have become the 316th prisoner to be executed in it. Bradley, of Cleveland, was convicted in a 1963 shotgun slaying which followed a card game argument.

Only clemency intervention of the governor or a court action can save Bradley from his deadly date.

Some who oppose execution saw hope for Bradley and other tenants of "death row" in a resolution in the Ohio House seeking to put the question of capital punishment before the voters this fall. Eighty-three votes were needed to pass the measure, but it was defeated June 8, with 68 votes against, 61 for.

The resolution would have set up a second election on the question of whether a murderer should be put to death. The death penalty would have remained for killers of the president, governor or law officers in line of duty.

Once before, in 1912, the voters were asked about capital punishment. They voted to retain it, 303,246 to 258,706.

But the arguments over capital punishment in Ohio are much older than that.

As early as 1835, efforts by some to abolish the death sentence led to the first legislative study and a committee report asking that the death penalty be erased. The resulting bill was hotly debated in the House, but was never passed.

More attempts to end the death penalty in 1847, 1848 and 1850 failed. The issue was raised again in 1923 by Gov. Harry Davis. Davis' term ended, the death sentence remained.

The question came up repeatedly over the years and in 1949 the Ohio House passed an anti-execution bill. It died in the Senate.

The latest proposal in the House loosed the controversy once more. The arguments remain much the same.

Those in favor of the death penalty say it is a deterrent to crime and protects society from barbarism. Those opposed cite statistics they claim show there is no rise in crime without the death sentence and point to innocent persons who have been executed.

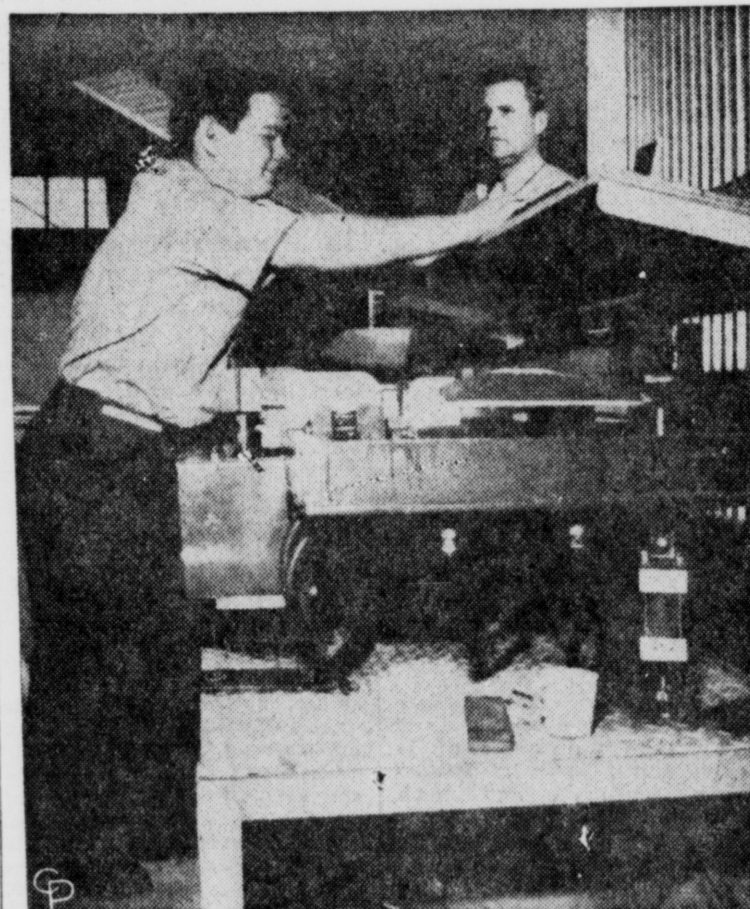

Appeals could delay or prevent—the deaths of the 10 men now in the Ohio Penitentiary's "death row." The chair has not been used in two years, since Donald Riensholt of Columbus was executed March 15, 1963. Indefinite stays pending outcome of appeals are in effect in most of the other cases of death row inmates.

3 Postmasterships In Ohio Nominated

Observers have found huge areas of the Indian Ocean—as large as 75,000 square miles—covered by millions of tons of dead fish.

"STRETCHED" TO 5-FEET-3—Virgil Anderson, 22, whose stature was increased from 4-feet-4 to 5-feet-3 by pituitary gland injections, is shown happily on his job in La Jolla, Calif. The treatments began when he was 14. Now he says he feels like most anybody else.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidents Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower were seldom out of the news but they never dominated it in the manner of Presidents Johnson and John F. Kennedy.

In their sense of the dramatic, Truman and Eisenhower were no match for Kennedy and Johnson. Kennedy always knew where the center of the stage was but he never occupied it so steadily as Johnson, who has built his tent there.

In the first half of 1965 events seemed to revolve around Johnson and it overshadowed in the process. He made them revolve around him.

His aides and members of his administration, either naturally or by order, let him do the talking. And what he had to say came in a ceaseless torrent: speeches, news conference, statements, messages, garden conversations.

The two men in Johnson's administration who, next to the President, do most of the talking are Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Even so, they're just echoes of Johnson. They're explainers, not announcers. Johnson does all the major announcing.

Thus the Vietnamese war was obscured a bit as the nation waited to see what Johnson would do or say about the bombing, suspending it, peace, troop buildups, or plans for Southeast Asia.

Since Johnson has shown himself a man of action, particularly in the use of armed force, this added to the attention he got and the suspense he created.

The effect was stunning, because it was so unexpected, when he suddenly sent troops into the Dominican Republic. But it was Johnson on television who broke the news.

Ordinarily, if nothing else had happened, this American involvement in the Dominican revolution would have been enough to keep the American mind glued on Latin America for happenings there.

But something else did happen.

For days after his first announcement it was not only the Dominican trouble but Johnson who stayed in focus by making statements. The fact that the Dominican events were soon unspectacular helped.

Even the role of Congress appeared secondary to the performance of the energetic and dramatic man in the White House.

In the first six months of any year congressional infighting, plus some occasional bellowing, and the struggle between the men in the Capitol and the President take up a good part of the front pages.

But this year Congress has been comparatively quiet while tackling and passing some major legislation and laying the necessary groundwork for passing much more in the months coming up.

True, Johnson's foreign policies got some criticism in Congress and from other sources. Some of it may have nudged him sooner than otherwise into welcoming "unconditional" peace talks on the war in Viet Nam.

But, by and large, he seemed undisturbed and kept on making statements or talking of new programs that got a lot more attention than the criticism.

Some of his best help came from the Republican leadership on Capitol Hill. Lately there's been some rumbling from congressional Republicans, but not of a strenuous kind. It may pick up sound as the 1966 congressional elections get closer.

Nevertheless, rosy as the Johnson public-relations picture is, there's a wait-and-see air about it. No one knows, and perhaps Johnson himself doesn't know, how he'll perform if events turn sour on him.

County NFO Elects Dairy Committee

The five member Dairy Bargaining committee was elected during the June meeting of the Pickaway County Farmers Organization.

Robert Barnes, Williamsport, was named chairman. Other members are Tom Caudill and Karl Braskett. They will serve for a one-year term.

The organization voted to donate several trophies to be awarded in the 4-H market hog division at the Pickaway County Fair.

During the meeting, it was reported that Oren Lee Staley, NFO national president, claimed NFO meat marketing arrangements have brought increased competition in the meat industry.

ACCORDING to Staley, this has played an important part in the rise of livestock prices the unexpected current high levels.

The next meeting is 8 p. m. July 20 in the 4-H and Grange Building at the Fairgrounds.

Spotting Speeders Is Easy In State Patrol Airplane

By STEVE JONES

Spotting speeding motorists in one of the Ohio State Highway Patrol traffic control planes is like shooting fish in a barrel.

From the air, a speeder stands out like a sore thumb. A trip in the OSP traffic plane Saturday afternoon made this quite evident.

Piloting the plane was Sgt. Jim Haines. Patrolman R. E. Carson of the local post was his "spotter."

"Just look for the car that's passing everything," Sgt. Haines said. Sgt. Haines explained a sign is posted ahead of the check point, indicating the airplane speed check is under way.

"MANY cars see the sign and slow down," the sergeant explained. "This is good," he continued, "since our primary purpose is to slow down speeders."

And the air speed check is considered one of the most accurate of any means.

Saturday's check resulted in 19 motorists being cited for exceeding the 60 mile per hour speed limit on Route 23.

The method, in spite of its high degree of accuracy, is amazingly simple.

A one mile long check point is divided into one-quarter mile strips.

Luci Baines' Rebaptism Is Pondered

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times reported today that the rebaptism of Luci Baines Johnson, the President's young daughter, on her conversion to Roman Catholicism has roused puzzlement and some regret in Vatican circles.

The Times said in a dispatch from Rome that Vatican sources were assuming that the rite was a "conditional baptism." In cases, in which a priest may doubt the validity of an original baptism, he pronounces the "conditional" formula, which begins "If you have not been baptized, I baptize thee...."

Miss Johnson was baptized as an infant in the Episcopal Church.

To question the validity of baptism in any Christian church is contrary to the currently accepted practice of the Roman Catholic Church, statements of Pope Paul VI, the will of the Ecumenical Council and the rulings of the Holy Office, the Times said.

The Times reported from Washington that the Rev. James Montgomery said he followed the laws of the church in rebaptizing Miss Johnson. Father Montgomery told the Times Miss Johnson requested the ceremony because she wishes in conscience to be sure she was meeting the requirements of the Church.

the one-quarter mark, and the speed computed.

THE car, if speeding, is then "talked" to the patrolmen on the ground who have outside speakers on their car radios.

And here again, there is virtually no chance of the patrolman making a mistake.

The plane stays right with the car until it is stopped.

A good control program requires three cars on the ground. After several motorists have been stopped, one of the patrolmen takes them to the Circleville Municipal Court or the Police Station to post bond.

Members of the Highway Patrol are not allowed to accept bond or fine money. City policemen, however, are all deputy clerks of the local Municipal Court and when it is not in session they accept the bond money.

Those motorists who live in or near Circleville are given a date to appear in court and are not required to post bond.

BUT out of state drivers as well as those who live some distance away must post bond or sign a waiver. The waiver authorizes the court bailiff to enter a plea of guilty to the charge at the hearing. If the waiver is signed, the motorist pays his fine and continues on his way.

During a speed check, the busiest men are the patrolmen on the ground. They not only stop the motorist, but also fill out traffic citations and take violators in to post bond.

Flying as spotter is on a volunteer basis. Sgt. Haines said that at Circleville he never had trouble getting a spotter since all the men stationed here like to fly.

In fact, he pointed out that some of the men will volunteer to fly as spotter on their own time.

Another Move Is Started To End Ohio Death Penalty

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — About 8:30 p. m. July 30, William Jack Bradley will walk 25 feet to his death.

Unless plans are changed, Bradley's last walk will take him to the death chamber at Ohio Penitentiary. There he will be strapped to the electric chair.

Four men pushing identical buttons will send 2,000 volts of electricity through the chair in 34-100 of a second Bradley will have become the 316th prisoner to be executed in it. Bradley, of Cleveland, was convicted in a 1963 shotgun slaying which followed a card game argument.

Only clemency intervention of the governor or a court action can save Bradley from his deadly date.

Some who oppose execution saw hope for Bradley and other tenants of "death row" in a resolution in the Ohio House seeking to put the question of capital punishment before the voters this fall. Eighty-three votes were needed to pass the measure, but it was defeated June 8, with 68 votes against, 61 for.

The resolution would have set up a second election on the question of whether a murderer should be put to death. The death penalty would have remained for killers of the president, governor or law officers in line of duty.

Once before, in 1912, the voters were asked about capital punishment. They voted to retain it, 303,246 to 258,706. But the arguments over capital punishment in Ohio are much older than that.

As early as 1835, efforts by some to abolish the death sentence led to the first legislative study and a committee report asking that the death penalty be erased. The resulting bill was hotly debated in the House, but was never passed.

More attempts to end the death penalty in 1847, 1848 and 1850 failed. The issue was raised again in 1923 by Gov. Harry Davis. Davis' term ended, the death sentence remained.

The question came up repeatedly over the years and in 1949 the Ohio House passed an anti-execution bill. It died in the Senate.

The latest proposal in the House loosed the controversy once more. The arguments remain much the same.

Those in favor of the death penalty say it is a deterrent to crime and protects society from barbarism. Those opposed cite statistics they claim show there is no rise in crime without the death sentence and point to innocent persons who have been executed.

Appeals could delay or prevent—the deaths of the 10 men now in the Ohio Penitentiary's "death row." The chair has not been used in two years, since Donald Rienbolt of Columbus was executed March 15, 1963. Indefinite stays pending outcome of appeals are in effect in most of the other cases of death row inmates.

Prushing started and went to the sixth. On the way he fanned eight, and walked three, allowing nine runs and two hits. Kasler took over in the sixth and issued two free passes to first. In his inning he was touched for three hits and a run.

Cassidy went the distance for the Pirates. He walked five, whiffed six and allowed 11 hits.

HOMERUNS were in style as Kasler and Harold Smith blasted one each and Rickey Blankenship walloped two. Smith tagged a homer for the Pirates.

Tom Wickerham slashed a three-bagger and Prushing belted a double in the Stars 11-bingle mangle.

The Pirates tallied six in the first but the Stars led by the second 7-6. Three in the third put the Pirates in front again but the Circleville squad tallied five in the fifth to maintain the lead.

In the second tilt Tom Bowers took the loss for Circleville. Six frames showed Bowers walking one and striking out nine while being touched for 13 hits.

Tribble was awarded the win for the Cleaners in his six frame game. He walked three and fanned three, scattering 10 hits.

Marion Long and Mike Webb each blasted homers for the home team. Long, Richard Radcliff, Mark Lutz, and Tom Wickerham added three baggers to the Stars' efforts. Long biffed a double for the Stars. Smith and Brooks tagged the only extra-base Pirate bingles, doubles.

The Cleaners tallied nine runs in the first three frames to breeze past the All-Stars.

CHICAGO (AP) — After six days of ruling the American League roost, the Cleveland Indians can stop looking over their shoulders at the second place team. They're in second place today.

The Tribe's 3-1 loss to the Chicago White Sox Monday, coupled with a day-night doubleheader sweep by the Minnesota Twins over the Boston Red Sox, gave the Twins a 1½-game lead.

It was a throwing error that opened the door for two Chicago runs in the seventh inning. Pitcher Sam McDowell, the American League's strikeout leader, fielded a bunt and threw the ball over the head of Pedro Gonzalez coming over to cover first base.

Bill Skowron had singled and McDowell grabbed Ron Hansen's bunt in front of third baseman Max Alvis. Skowron scored on the bad throw and Hansen went to third, then trotted home on Floyd Robinson's single.

"I tried to lead Pete with a football type pass," McDowell said. "I just put too much on it."

Manager Birdie Tebbetts, reluctant to criticize any ballplayer, admitted after the game that "the wrong guy fielded the bunts both times." McDowell Buford's bunt in the first but couldn't make the play in time.

Cincy Reds Squeeze into First Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati squeezed ahead of Los Angeles into the National League lead.

But if the New York Mets played only on Monday, the Reds and Dodgers wouldn't even be in the race.

Cashing in on a succession of wild throws, the Reds scored three times in the seventh inning Monday night and beat the slipping Dodgers 7-4. That put Cincinnati into first place by two percentage points, dropping Los Angeles out of the top spot for the first time since May 4.

Meanwhile, led by the slugging of Shea Stadium's reigning idol Ron Swoboda — the last-place Mets continued to work their Monday magic. Swoboda knocked across the first five runs of the holiday doubleheader with a pair of homers as the Mets swept Chicago, 3-2 and 3-0.

Since losing to the Dodgers on opening day, the well-trenched tailenders have won eight and tied one on Monday. Included in the unusual string is the 1-0 triumph at Cincinnati on June 14 — the night Jim Maloney pitched a no-hitter for 10 innings — as well as three doubleheader sweeps.

And to prove they're not one-season wonders, the Mets won six of seven on Monday last year.

Also in the NL — the Philadelphia Phillies made it eight victories in their last 10 games by knocking off Pittsburgh twice in a two-night doubleheader, 3-1 and 6-2; Curt Flood's single in the 12th inning enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to win their sixth straight, 3-2 over San Francisco; and Walt Bond's squeeze bunt in the ninth brought in the run that gave Houston a 5-4 decision over Milwaukee's slumping Braves.

In the American League — Minnesota took a 1½-game lead with a day-night doubleheader sweep over Boston, 6-2 and 2-0; Chicago downed Cleveland 3-1; Baltimore beat Kansas City 7-4; the New York Yankees split with Detroit, winning the opener 7-2 and losing the second game 5-4; and Los Angeles divided with Washington, the Angels taking the first game 5-2 and the Senators winning the second 4-3.

The Reds got only one hit in their seventh — inning rally against the Dodgers — Leo Cardenas' leadoff single. But losing reliever Bob Miller threw wildly to second on winning pitcher Jim Maloney's bunt, followed with another wild throw — to third — on Tommy Harper's bunt, and center fielder Willie Davis then threw wildly to third after catching Pete Rose's sacrifice fly. Result: Three runs.

Dodger starter Nick Willhite hit a three-run double in the second and Lou Johnson homered in the fourth for Los Angeles. The Reds got two runs in the second and tied it on Cardenas' two-run single in the fourth before going on to hand the Dodgers their eighth defeat in the last 11 games.

Three former major league catchers are coaches with the Washington Senators. They are Al (Rube) Walker, Joe Pignatano and George Susce.

Win in the Pace non-winner of $6,000, and George Van Camp has entered Bullet Van in the Director of Agriculture Pace with a purse of $25,000 and Virgins Phone in the Governor's Cup Trot also worth $25,000. Overall purse for the 14 card racing event is expected to reach $136,000, one of the top purses in the country.

The Harness Racing at the 1965 Ohio State Fair will be free to all spectators. The new free entertainment policy includes the racing events as well as the top name entertainers that will be appearing on the state fairgrounds in Columbus. Fair dates for 1965 are Aug. 27 through Sept. 6.

Columbus '9' Takes Lead In IL Battle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Columbus Jets have taken over first place from Atlanta in the International League standings and the Crackers may fall right out of the race if they don't start hitting.

Columbus used the three-hit pitching of Jim Shellenback Monday night to beat Atlanta 2-0. This marked 30 straight innings of scoreless baseball for Atlanta and was the fourth time in five games the Crackers have been shut out.

In other games, Syracuse swept a doubleheader from Rochester, beating the Red Wings 4-2 in both contests, and Buffalo defeated Toronto 6-4. Toledo's game at Jacksonville was rained out.

Columbus, which will take a ½-game lead into the second game of the crucial series with Atlanta tonight, scored both its runs in the eighth inning on an infield hit by Jose Pagan and a throwing error by Atlanta shortstop Ernie Bowman.

No Chinese HRs On Swoboda List

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Swoboda has a Chinese step-grandfather but there's nothing Oriental about his home runs.

When the New York Mets' slugging outfielder gets good wood on a pitch there's little doubt about the ball's destination. None of those cheap home runs — sometimes called Chinese homers — for him.

The Baltimore native crashed a couple on the nose Monday and in both instances the Chicago outfielders didn't even bother to turn around.

Swoboda hit his first homer in the first inning of the opener, off southpaw Dick Ellsworth. There were two on base and that was all the Mets needed to win 3-2.

Cincy Reds Squeeze into First Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati squeezed ahead of Los Angeles into the National League lead.

But if the New York Mets played only on Monday, the Reds and Dodgers wouldn't even be in the race.

Cashing in on a succession of wild throws, the Reds scored three times in the seventh inning Monday night and beat the slipping Dodgers 7-4. That put Cincinnati into first place by two percentage points, dropping Los Angeles out of the top spot for the first time since May 4.

Meanwhile, led by the slugging of Shea Stadium's reigning idol Ron Swoboda — the last-place Mets continued to work their Monday magic. Swoboda knocked across the first five runs of the holiday doubleheader with a pair of homers as the Mets swept Chicago, 3-2 and 3-0.

Since losing to the Dodgers on opening day, the well-trenched tailenders have won eight and tied one on Monday. Included in the unusual string is the 1-0 triumph at Cincinnati on June 14 — the night Jim Maloney pitched a no-hitter for 10 innings — as well as three doubleheader sweeps.

And to prove they're not one-season wonders, the Mets won six of seven on Monday last year.

Also in the NL — the Philadelphia Phillies made 10 victories in their last 10 games by knocking off Pittsburgh twice in a two-night doubleheader, 3-1 and 6-2; Curt Flood's single in the 12th inning enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to win their sixth straight, 3-2 over San Francisco; and Walt Bond's squeeze bunt in the ninth brought in the run that gave Houston a 5-4 decision over Milwaukee's slumping Braves.

In the American League — Minnesota took a 1½-game lead with a day-night doubleheader sweep over Boston, 6-2 and 2-0; Chicago downed Cleveland 3-1; Baltimore beat Kansas City 7-4; the New York Yankees split with Detroit, winning the opener 7-2 and losing the second game 5-4; and Los Angeles divided with Washington, the Angels taking the first game 5-2 and the Senators winning the second 4-3.

The Reds got only one hit in their seventh — inning rally against the Dodgers — Leo Cardenas' leadoff single. But losing reliever Bob Miller threw wildly to second on winning pitcher Jim Maloney's bunt, followed with another wild throw — to third — on Tommy Harper's bunt, and center fielder Willie Davis then threw wildly to third after catching Pete Rose's sacrifice fly. Result: Three runs.

Dodger starter Nick Willhite hit a three-run double in the second and Lou Johnson homered in the fourth for Los Angeles. The Reds got two runs in the second and tied it on Cardenas' two-run single in the fourth before going on to hand the Dodgers their eighth defeat in the last 11 games.

Three former major league catchers are coaches with the Washington Senators. They are Al (Rube) Walker, Joe Pignatano and George Suse.

Area Horses Entered in State Fair

Entrance fees have been paid for three Circleville horses to enter the 1965 Ohio State Fair Harness Races, Aug. 30 through Sept. 2.

Forest and Harry Short have entered Royal J. Win in the Pace non-winner of $6,000, and George Van Camp has entered Bullet Van in the Director of Agriculture Pace with a purse of $25,000 and Virgiles Phone in the Governor's Cup Trot also worth $25,000. Overall purse for the 14 card racing event is expected to reach $136,000, one of the top purses in the country.

The Harness Racing at the 1965 Ohio State Fair will be free to all spectators. The new free entertainment policy includes the racing events as well as the top name entertainers that will be appearing on the state fairgrounds in Columbus. Fair dates for 1965 are Aug. 27 through Sept. 6.

Walking Wounded Feared In British Open Contest

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — The word went out today among the ranks of the world's greatest golfers:

"Watch out for the walking wounded. They'll beat you."

A half dozen of the top stars in the field of 130 that has gathered for the British Open are complaining of health problems of one sort or another.

Arnold Palmer, who won the Open on Royal Birkdale's 7,037-yard par 73 course four years ago, wore a turtle neck sweater against chill winds which might further damage a sore throat he has been bothered with for several days.

Bruce Devlin of Australia had such a bad throat he even had it X-rayed in case there was some foreign body lodged there. It wasn't.

Kel Nagle, fellow Australian who was runner-up in the U.S. Open this year and won the British Crown at St. Andrews in 1960, had a sore back.

So did Bob Charles of New Zealand, the 1963 champion. The Birkdale Club lined up a local physiotherapist to tend them.

Defending champion Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif., breezed in Monday, back to his playing weight of 175 after he started smoking again to reduce from 195.

But Lema recalled a stomach upset he had last year in England and said "I hope that doesn't show up again."

Gary Player, the little South African who won the American Open three-weeks ago, said he was pleased that the winds were blowing in off the Irish Sea.

"My hay fever, you know," he said. Everybody in the star studded field seemed able and willing to have something wrong with them, except Jack Nicklaus, who is the 3-1 favorite to win his first British Open, the only major championship that has eluded the Golden Bear.

"I'm fine," he said with a big smile. "And I'm desperate to win this one."

In his tuneups for the 72 hole medal play which starts Wednesday and ends Friday, Nicklaus had a special look at the 468 yard par-4 sixth hole.

"It's the worst hole," he said. "It's all right for power hitters like myself, Palmer and some others and I can play it. But it must be powered."

Mauch Warns: Watch Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "The pitching is coming through, and that's the big difference now."

Gene Mauch, tired but elated as he wiped a sweaty brow in the Philadelphia dressing room, gave that explanation after Monday night's 3-1, 6-2 sweep of the Pittsburgh Pirates that left the Phillies all alone in fourth place in the National League standings.

With Cincinnati's defeat of Los Angeles, the Phils are now just three games from the top "and heading right for it," says Mauch.

The Phils now have won 19 of their last 27 games, a torrid pace which Mauch says "we have the momentum to maintain."

Pete Quinn, third baseman-outfielder from New Milford, N. J., will captain Columbia University's 1966 baseball team.

The New York Jets will play five exhibition games before the start of the American Football League season.

3 Yankees Named to All-Star '9'

BOSTON (AP) — Three Minnesota Twins and three New York Yankees were among nine picked for the 1965 American League All-Star team Tuesday by Manager Al Lopez of Chicago.

The Yankees, shut out in the balloting for the starters in the annual All-Star clash at Minnesota July 13, will be represented by catcher Elston Howard, second baseman Bobby Richardson and outfielder Mickey Mantle.

This was the 14th All-Star selection for the ailing Mantle, making him the senior on the team announced by American League headquarters.

Chosen to join Minnesota's Earl Battey, the starting catcher selected in a poll of AL players, coaches and managers, were shortstop Zoilo Versalles, first baseman Harmon Killebrew and outfielder Jimmy Hall.

Also named by Lopez were third baseman Max Alvis of Cleveland and outfielders Al Kaline of Detroit and Carl Yastrzemski of Boston.

As the All-Star manager, Lopez must also name the pitching corps to be announced Friday.

Lopez followed the choices of the poll, and all those named were runners-up in the balloting, except Mantle.

Since all 10 AL teams must be represented on the All-Star squad, Lopez must select pitchers from Kansas City, Washington and Los Angeles among his eight choices.

Pete Quinn, third baseman-outfielder from New Milford, N. J., will captain Columbia University's 1966 baseball team.

ON VACATION—Jacqueline Kennedy, widow of President John F. Kennedy, walks with her son, John, in Hyannis Port, Mass., where they, and her daughter, Caroline, are spending a month's vacation at the Kennedy Compound.

Hospital Emergency Staff Busy during Holiday Period

A total of 18 persons received emergency care in Berger Hospital during the July Fourth weekend for a variety of injuries resulting from numerous sources. All were treated and released.

Valerie Van Buskirk, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Van Buskirk, Dunkle Road, caught a toe of her right foot in a car door.

George Phifer, 28, of 716 S. Washington St., injured a finger of his left hand with a hammer.

Brenda Brown, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Brown, 420 E. Mill St., fell off a couch at home and lacerated her left arm on the corner of the table.

Dale Byrd, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Byrd, 222 Pearl St., suffered an injury to his right ankle while playing baseball at Ted Lewis Park.

Kimberly Hampp, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Hampp, 821 Clinton St., swallowed an unknown quantity of pills.

Paul Johnson, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson, 585 Woodland Drive, was struck in the left eye with a stick.

Todd Caudill, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Caudill, 136 W. Main St., suffered a laceration on the scalp after being struck with a toy shovel.

Loren Payne, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Payne, 149 Fairview Ave., punctured his right foot on a nail.

Harry Graef, 56, of 325 Watt St., while working at Hanley's lacerated his right wrist when a bottle exploded.

David Bowser, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bowser, McComb, was struck in the left eye with a burning cigarette.

Roy Arledge, 5½, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Arledge, Dayton, was treated after an unknown object caused a laceration to his scalp.

Patricia Davis, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Davis, Columbus, jumped out of a tree and punctured her left foot on a nail.

Keith Kerens, 16 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kerens, Lancaster, swallowed an unknown quantity of charcoal starter fluid.

Bill Brock Jr., 17, of 350 Ridgewood Drive, lacerated his forehead on a rock.

Blanche Kerns, 46, Route 1, cut a finger of her left hand on a bolt.

Merda Marshall, 57, of 151 Highland Ave., caught his right thumb in a fan at home.

Florence Davis, 77, Kingston, caught a finger of her right hand in a wringer.

Tom Duffy, 25, Chillicothe, an employee of the local Super Duper Market, cut a finger of his left hand on a butcher knife.

News of World in Brief

LONDON (AP) — The British government announce today it has dropped, for the time being, its efforts to lead a Commonwealth mission in search of a Viet Nam peace settlement, because of Communist opposition.

Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley told the House of Commons in answer to a question: "Her Majesty's government does not intend at the moment to take any further initiative with our Commonwealth partners on Viet Nam."

At the same time Prime Minister Harold Wilson announced that he had invited U.N. Secretary-General U Thant to stop for talks in London on his way back to New York from Geneva.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Torrential rains, hail and hurricane force winds swept through suburban Tampa Monday night, downing power lines, uprooting trees and shrubs and flooding streets.

"We were completely bombarded by lightning for two solid hours. It was one of the worst thunderstorms I've ever seen in my life," said Robert Hill, forecaster with the Tampa Weather Bureau, who lives six miles east southeast of Tampa.

Hill said three to four inches of rain fell within two hours and winds hit 60 and 75 miles an hour.

LONDON (AP) — British Methodists voted Monday to rejoin the Church of England.

The Methodists voted by 488-137 in favor of a two-stage plan. First there will be intercommunion between the two churches; later full organic union. The Anglicans have already backed similar draft proposals.

British Methodists broke away from the state-established church in the mid-18th century, objecting to some aspects of Anglican tradition, practice and theological principles.

The decision to rejoin the Anglicans was taken by the Methodist annual conference, now meeting in Plymouth, which has full powers.

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — An airman at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base painted Nazi swastikas, Confederate flags and abbreviations of 10 Southern states on a section of the flightline, over the Fourth of July, base officials said.

They said military police picked up the airman and he admitted the work. He is to be questioned by the base's office of special investigations, authorities said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington sources say the United States has decided to treat the new Boumediene regime as a continuation of the previous government of Algeria.

Col. Houari Boumediene led a successful revolt against President Ben Bella on June 19.

The sources said William J. Porter, U.S. ambassador to Algeria, has requested an appointment with Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika to relay the U.S. decision.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore plan to send living frogs into orbit in an unmanned satellite.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said it has accepted the school's preliminary design for a life support system to sustain the frogs in a four-day orbit.

NASA said the experiment will study the effects upon the living organisms of alternating periods of weightlessness and acceleration.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church and the Lutheran World Federation have agreed to form a working group "to intensify and extend official contacts" between the two churches.

An announcement issued here and in Geneva Monday said seven members from each church have been appointed to the group. Vatican sources said it was the first such agreement between the Roman Catholic Church and a single Protestant church.

ROME (AP) — A tornado that ripped across northern Italy from Genoa to Venice Sunday killed at least 17 persons and left a trail of damage estimated at $160 million, authorities said today.

Six other persons died Monday in torrential rains in the north and hot winds in Sicily, bringing the 10-day toll from the weather in Italy to at least 43.

NAUPLIA, Greece (AP) — Repeated earth tremors rolled across the northern eoponessus for five hours early today, crumbling farm dwellings and injuring six persons, national police reported.

Police said 40 hours were destroyed and 80 damaged in villages around Patras, capital of the Peloponnesus.

KUCHING, Malaysia (AP) — The Malaysian government started moving Chinese villagers in the heart of Sarawak State into concentration camps today after charging that they were supporting Communist terrorists.

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The Peruvian government has started a roundup of known Communists and dispatched 100 army rangers to fight terrorists in the highlands. It said the terrorists were Communist inspired.

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — The U.S. Navy is investigating a miniature submarine found grounded at low tide on a mud flat a mile south of the juncture of the Imjin and Han rivers.

The submarine, believed to be a two-man Japanese craft left over from World War II, was found Monday by a Korean army patrol.

The highest geographic point in New England is atop 6,288-foot Mt. Washington in New Hampshire. Rhode Island has the lowest high point of any of the six New England States—Jermoth Hill, 812 feet above sea level.

Two Cleveland men were attacked and beaten by a gang of 40 to 50 teen-agers late Monday night, police reported.

The gang then rampaged along several blocks, breaking windows in at least 10 businesses. The youths also damaged two cars along the way.

Police said the youths stormed off a bus returning from Euclid Beach Park, armed with bricks and stones.

The two men were waiting at a bus stop at East 140th Street and St. Clair. Police said both were knocked to the ground and kicked. Treated at Huron Road Hospital for cuts and bruises were Andrew Cardaro, 21, of Cleveland, and Donald Stroud, 35, of East Cleveland.

Other trouble spots were Rockaway Beach, Mo., and Lake George, N.Y.

Sheriff Lyman Cardwell reported that "the situation is quiet at Rockaway Beach — all the kids have left."

Cardwell said he has devised a plan for preventing a recurrence but "I don't aim to publicize it at this time."

At Lake George, which had the biggest crowds and the most arrests — about 350 — officials would not call the disturbances riots.

"Sure the number was high, but only a few were serious," said Police Justice John Dier. "Preventive police work was the answer."

WATCHDOG RESIGNS — The watchdog over government spending for more than 10 years, Joseph Campbell has resigned as comptroller general because of ill health, effective July 31.
